

Kingston, Paltz GIs Added to the Viet Toll

By SHANE CROSBY

Two Ulster County soldiers—one from Kingston and the other from New Paltz—became the first and second servicemen from the area killed in action in Vietnam this year, according to confirmed information given to The Freeman.

Private First Class John Senor of Old Flatbush Road, Kingston and Henry Schulte of New Paltz, both of the U. S. Army, were killed in action over the weekend. Families of both men were notified by the military Monday night, it was reported.

PFC Senor, 20, was a graduate of Kingston High School, Class of 1967. He had been inducted into the service on May 16, 1968. A Kingston native, he had been employed by the Eagle GM Diesel Company, before entering the Army. He was the son of Joseph and Marie Senor. Funeral arrangements are being made by the Frank H. Simpson Funeral Home.

PFC Schulte, 21-years-old, was a graduate of New Paltz Central High School, Class of 1966. He had been inducted into the Army last summer. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schulte. His father is a building contractor.

Twenty-two Ulster County servicemen have died in action in Vietnam since 1966. Seven were from Kingston.

Three men from upstate New York were included in a list of 75 servicemen killed in action released by the Defense Department Monday. The list did not include Ulster County's losses.

The Defense Department said the New Yorkers were: Army 1st Lt. Irwin W. Presser Jr., of Sauguit, Navy Hospital Corpsman 3rd Class William R. Gray Jr., of Fulton, and Marine Lance Cpl. Bernard G. Purvis of Norfolk.

Negotiators for the Communists will wait for concrete offers of "concessions" from South Vietnam before moving to break the deadlock at the Vietnam peace talks. Story on page 28.

Meanwhile, the United Press International news service in Saigon reported that B52 Bombers dropping 750-pound bombs from an altitude of 30,000 feet blasted a Communist jungle base camp and killed 200 North Vietnamese soldiers.

South Vietnamese troops explored the ruins of the camp in South Vietnam's Central Highlands 235 miles Northeast of Saigon Monday and found the dead, who wore green jungle fatigues, the spokesmen said.

Direct hits from the bombs also destroyed 10 barracks structures, a network of bunkers and a food storage depot.

In Saigon, the U.S. Command announced the close of three extensive military operations in central South Vietnam. The campaigns occurred over a 16-month period and resulted in more than 7,000 Communist troops killed, spokesmen said.

The spokesmen said U.S. losses in the long-term operations were 1,096 killed and 5,312 wounded.

Up, Up and Away — Not Quite

A Dutchess County Community College history student and his girl companion from Poughkeepsie, failed to cover the pilot and crew of National Airlines New-York-to-Miami huge jet Monday in their attempt to hijack the aircraft to Havana. Meanwhile, a knife-wielding Cuban succeeded in hijacking another jet airliner with 93 persons aboard to his native island. The student, Michael Peparo, 18, of the Putnam County community of Cold Spring, and his girl friend, Tamsin Fitzgerald, 18, of Poughkeepsie, were taken into custody at Miami. Both were charged with air piracy and kidnapping and held without bond pending federal court action. Peparo (top) is shown sitting in FBI auto. Authorities said he pulled a knife and a can of mosquito repellent which appeared to be a "bomb" and demanded the pilot of the plane to fly to Cuba. FBI agents (bottom) lead the girl from the Miami airport after the arrests. (UPI TELEPHOTOS)

Skyjackers Batted .500 In Their Havana Specials

MIAMI (AP) — A knife-wielding Cuban hijacked a jet airliner with 93 persons to his native island Monday. But the passengers and crew of a second huge jet were spared a similar detour when their pilot decided a long-haired youth lacked the nerve to carry out his skyjack threat.

The youth, Michael Peparo, 18, of Cold Spring, N.Y., and a girl companion, Tamsin Fitzgerald, 18, of Poughkeepsie, N.Y., were arrested when National Airlines New York-to-Miami flight landed here. Both were charged with air piracy and kidnapping and held without bond.

Airline officials said Peparo was carrying a knife and a can of mosquito repellent when he forced his way into the cockpit of the flight carrying 73 persons.

Capt. Harry Davis, the pilot, said Peparo told him he was eligible for the draft in about six months and didn't want to go into the army. Peparo said he preferred a simple life of hard work, in Cuba if necessary, Davis said.

The flight engineer, Harry L. Hendrickson, said Peparo gave way to tears several times while talking with the crew. Davis told officers he "doubted the boy had the nerve" to carry out his threat.

He said the crew convinced Peparo they would need more fuel to make the trip to Havana and he agreed to land in Miami. After they were on the ground, Peparo agreed to give up the plan entirely, Davis said.

Peparo wore a mustache, shoulder-length hair, blue jeans, desert boots and a pullover sweater. Miss Fitzgerald wore boots and a flowered dress and carried a flute in a small black case.

In Poughkeepsie, the girl's mother told newsmen her daughter "went to New York with her friend Mickey on the 8 o'clock train this morning. She said she was going to take a flute lesson and then do some errands. I sort of thought she was putting me on but..."

Mrs. John Fitzgerald said her daughter and Mickey had been seeing each other "for about six months. Mickey lost his 2S (student) deferment when the term ended in January—he was attending Dutchess Community College here—and Tamsin told me he was worried about the draft."

The four persons who left the hijacked Eastern Airlines plane in Cuba were "dressed well enough," pilot Capt. Jack Moore said.

Capt. Moore said the passenger list carried the names of the quartet, two men and two women, as "J. Babin, W. Hernandez, Mrs. W. Hernandez and Miss Hernandez." He said the men were Cubans "about 40, one about six feet tall with receding hair. The other a little shorter, maybe five feet ten and approaching the chubby side."

"Only one spoke English and he told me, 'We are Cubans and we have to go back,'" Moore said. "He didn't say why."

Moore said one of the hijackers forced his way into the cockpit with what "looked like a large steak knife with a blade about nine inches long" held against Stewardess Peggy Boulton, 20, of Philadelphia.

Arab Guerrilla: A Liberation War

By MURRAY J. BROWN
United Press International

An Arab guerrilla leader today vowed to mount a "war of liberation" throughout Israel-occupied territory.

In Cairo, Yasser Arafat told newsmen he would "escalate the Palestinian armed revolution in all parts of occupied Palestine to become a popular war of liberation."

He spoke following his election Monday night as chairman of the executive committee of the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO), a combine of guerrilla bands and groups of Arab refugees from Israeli-held territory.

Only Solution
Arafat said armed force is their only solution. He ruled out "all political solutions." He is a leader of the fanatic El Fatah guerrilla band.

In Amman, Jordanian authorities Monday accused Israel of sending two helicopters gunships backed by jet fighters into the area and strafing a civilian settlement, killing two women.

According to Jordanian and Iraqi spokesmen it was the fourth Israeli air incursion and strike of the day into Jordan. Both Jordan and Iraq, which keeps some 10,000 troops in Jordan, claimed downing two Israeli aircraft.

In Jerusalem, Israeli spokesmen denied their craft did any raiding Monday except for hitting Jordanian guns that popped at an Israeli patrol on the west bank of the Jordan. The Israelis reported no air losses.

Other Developments
In other Middle East developments:

—Israeli officials said an Arab terrorist grenade killed two Arab boys and wounded eight other bystanders Monday in Israeli-occupied Gaza. The blast came shortly after Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan ended a tour of the city.

—In Cairo, Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad appealed Monday to U.N. Secretary General Thant to "put an end to Israeli barbaric acts" against demonstrators in Gaza.

He also told his parliament Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser reached "very important" decisions the past week in talks in Cairo with visiting Soviet Communist party president member Alexander N. Shelepin. Riad did not detail the decisions.

—In Damascus, Syria, the official Syrian newspaper Al Thawra said Iraqi leaders had ousted and placed under house arrest their vice premier and defense minister, Lt. Gen. Hardan Takriti. It said a power struggle in Iraq has reached a peak, involving mass arrests and "terrorist activity."

Rockefeller May Say Yes

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI)—Governor Rockefeller broadly hinted Monday night he would accept a Nixon administration post as head of a special Latin-American diplomatic mission — if it's offered on his terms.

The governor did not spell out exactly what his terms were, but he indicated he would expect the duties would not take him away from New York State for more than a week at a time.

The mission, offered Rockefeller last week by the President, would begin a re-evaluation of the Alliance for Progress, the eight-year-old hemispheric development program which has failed to meet many of Latin America's expectations.

Rockefeller said any tour he would make of Latin America as head of such a mission would have to be planned well in advance. He said he would expect to spend "no more than a day" in each country, conferring with the leaders of each nation on the problems they face.

The governor made the comments during a question-and-answer session that followed his address before a dinner of the New York State Society of Newspaper Editors.

In other developments, Rockefeller:

- Made his strongest statement to date on his plans to run for a fourth term as New York's chief executive.
- Learned his state education commissioner, James E. Allen Jr., was named U.S. commissioner of education by Nixon.
- Learned that at least four other members of the Rockefeller team received "feelers" about possible posts in the administration.

Rockefeller said he did not know of Allen's appointment until Robert Finch, secretary of health, education & welfare, called him Monday morning. Allen was in Finch's office at the time.

"We hate to lose him," Rockefeller said. "But we told him, if he decided to go, it was all right with us."

The other members of the Rockefeller team who were approached about possible Washington jobs were William J. Ronan, head of the Metropolitan Transportation Authority; T. Norman Hurd, budget director; Atty. Gen. Louis J. Lefkowitz; and Tax Commissioner Joseph H. Murphy.

Murphy was being considered, dency, Rockefeller, who lost the sources said, for the post of Internal Revenue Service director and Nixon last August, asked his audience to "excuse me," then broke into a loud laugh.

On the possibility of a fourth term in Albany, Rockefeller said he found that being governor of New York was a "most exciting activity."

"As long as you fellows can tolerate me," Rockefeller said, "my intention is to run again. I don't think that other than the presidency there is a more exciting job than this one."

At the mention of the presidential nomination, Rockefeller, who lost the Republican nomination to Richard Nixon last August, asked his audience to "excuse me," then broke into a loud laugh.

Erin Parliament Dissolved

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP)—Northern Ireland begins an election campaign today in which Prime Minister Terence O'Neill seeks support for his moderate policies toward the territory's Roman Catholic minority.

After four months of Protestant-Catholic strife, the 54-year-old prime minister dissolved the territorial Parliament Monday after it became clear an increasingly powerful faction in his ruling Unionist party was determined to drive him from office.

The vote is set for Feb. 24. The six counties' 942,000 voters will choose 52 members for the provincial Parliament.

Sirhan to Break Silence

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Sirhan B. Sirhan, who has uttered only two complete sentences since he was arrested for the murder of Robert F. Kennedy, was certain to break his long silence today.

He was called to testify in support of a defense effort to throw out the indictment against him on grounds the grand jury which returned it was unconstitutional.

The defendant and his mother, Mary, 56, was scheduled to give only limited testimony—restricted to the poor financial status of their immigrant family.

GETS JAIL, FINE—Albert Shanker, teachers' union president who led last fall's three citywide teachers' strikes, climbs the steps of Manhattan Supreme Court in New York Monday. In court, Shanker heard Justice Frank Bloustein convict him of violating a court order against the walkouts and sentence him to 15 days in jail and levy a fine of $250. Shanker's union, the United Federation of Teachers (UFT), was fined $220,000 for its willful disobedience of a court order to return its members to the schools. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Injuries Claim Life Of KHS Sports Star

By HUGH REYNOLDS

Michael Hoffman, the Kingston High School quarterback, "who had everything to live for" died in Kingston Hospital Monday afternoon from head injuries suffered in a auto accident Jan. 26.

Death came to the 17-year-old senior at 2:45 p. m. He was to have attended North Carolina State University at Raleigh on a full football scholarship this fall.

North Carolina Coach Earle Edwards, who had recruited Hoffman after he led Kingston High School to share the DUSO title last fall, told The Freeman, "We had an opportunity to meet Mike and his folks here on campus when they visited us one weekend. We greatly enjoyed it and were looking forward very much to the association over the years with Mike and his folks."

"Of course his loss to us as a football player is serious," Coach Edwards said. "But this is not a time to think of that. We are all shocked and extend our deepest sympathy to his folks and his friends."

Hoffman's coach at Kingston High School, Frank Modica, said he "was a fine boy. A better than average athlete. An excellent student."

"He had everything going for him," Modica said.

Hoffman apparently never knew that he had received final acceptance at North Carolina State. The official word came on Jan. 27, the day after Hoffman was injured in the accident in Bloomington.

He had been returning from a football banquet at the Capri in Port Even where he was named the most improved football player in 1968 by his teammates.

Hoffman's teammates and coaches will act as pallbearers at his funeral Thursday at 2 p. m. from the Fair Street Reformed Church. Co-captains Steve Beverly and John Berardi (Hoffman was also a co-captain) and assistant coaches George Neher and Paul Gruner, along with Modica, will have the honor.

It has been requested that donations to the Michael Hoffman Memorial Scholarship Fund be forwarded to Ira Shaw, business office, Kingston City Schools.

Hoffman's death was Ulster County's fifth highway fatality of 1969.

The Garraghan appointment of O'Neill came less than 24 hours after Lyle, clerk for the past three years, announced that he would resign, effective April 1.

April 1 Starting Date
O'Neill will begin his duties, under Lyle's guidance on March 17 and will take over as clerk on the first of April.

Garraghan said today that O'Neill, an accountant, was "the best man I could find. He knows bookkeeping and he O'Neill will be paid the same salary as Lyle, $8,500, and will serve until Jan. 1, 1970.

votes. O'Neill served on the Ulster County Board of Supervisors from 1940 to 1945.

Lyle said Monday that pressing business obligations forced him to resign as city clerk. Lyle is a partner in a florist business with Alderman-at-Large T. Robert Gallo. He is also chairman of the city Democratic Committee and a candidate for county legislator from Kingston.

Tighten Laws On Credit Cards Says Rolison

ALBANY — Sen. Jay P. Rolison, Jr. (R., Dutchess-Ulster), a member of a special three man Senate sub-committee on credit card fraud, today criticized some companies for the mass distribution of unsolicited credit cards.

"As a result of our first public hearing held Friday in New York City it is apparent to me that we need legislation tightening our laws and increasing the penalties for the theft and use of stolen cards," the senator said. "However, it seems equally obvious that the practice of sending unsolicited cards in plainly marked envelopes by regular mail engaged in by some petroleum and mail order companies should be stopped," Rolison added. "Many credit card institutions are very careful, but others are not and if we are to put teeth into our laws to stop losses ranging upward of $20 to $30 million per year, all segments of the industry must cooperate," Rolison pointed out.

"We should consult with the Federal Government to see what steps can be taken to prevent the regular mailing of unsolicited cards. This just opens the door to theft and misuse and when you consider credit card theft is becoming a major source of revenue for organized crime, the problem becomes most serious," the senator concluded.

Given Eight Years

Opposition to Authority Plan For Housing Program Approval

By CHARLES BERHPOHL.

ELLENVILLE — Housing Authority Chairman Gordon Kent is seeking village approval of a $1,400,000 housing program for low income families and senior citizens but opposition to the plan was displayed Monday night at the regular village board meeting.

Kent explained that what he was looking for was a board resolution that would allow the local housing authority to apply to the Department of Housing and Urban Development for the so-called Turnkey program that would create 60 low income homes and 40 senior citizens units — 100 new homes in all.

Opposition to the proposal came from Trustee DeWitt Clinton who told The Freeman that he "never felt that public housing was the answer" to Ellenville housing woes, and he suggested that the HUD plan be put to a public referendum.

Kent, exclaiming that, "As chairman of the Housing Authority, I am convinced that there is a housing problem in Ellenville," said that in a referendum "the people who vote against (the housing plan) may not have the best interests of those in trouble at heart."

The chairman of the authority later told The Freeman that a referendum "would only kill" the proposal.

60 Low Income Homes

The Kent proposal would call for the 60 low income homes to be constructed at an estimated cost of $18,000 per unit at the intersection of Cape Road and Eastwood Avenue.

The senior citizens homes, estimated to cost $12,459 apiece, would be built at Spring Street, now a dead end roadway.

The 100 units would be financed through a bond issue guaranteed by HUD. The federal agency would assist with preliminary studies and primary funds to get the program under way.

The contractor who was awarded the bid would construct the units, then, upon completion of the project, would turn the keys to the new homes over to the housing authority.

The local agency, along with HUD, would then establish the price for each apartment and the rent-paying ability of prospective tenants. Federal government subsidies would cover the distance between the tenants' ability to pay and the actual rent price.

Rent monies would go towards paying off the bond.

Should such units actually be constructed, the logic of the housing authority's argument is that most of the incoming tenants would leave their relatively bad housing conditions in the village core, and those homes would either undergo rehabilitation or be condemned by the local building inspector.

It was pointed out at the meeting, that if the housing inspector enforced housing regulations, many landlords would refuse to rehabilitate, a number of buildings would then face condemnation and tenants would face the streets.

Kent appealed directly to the board when he said, "The village must indicate by resolution that it agrees with the housing project," and he asked the mayor and the trustees, "Do you really want to solve the problem or what?"

The board will study the proposal.

In other board action, voter registration days were set as Feb. 27 and March 21 from 12 noon to 9 p. m.

The election for a mayor and two trustees was set for March 18 from 12 noon to 9 p. m.

It was announced at the board meeting that Superintendent Maurice Blow of the Catskill Reformatory at Napanoch has stopped the dumping of hot ashes from the state institution at the village dump. It was indicated that such past dumpings had caused small fires in the area.

Trustee Clinton Gives Reason

ELLENVILLE—At the heart and, in some cases, may even be the new development and that of Village Trustee DeWitt Clinton's opposition to the proposed construction of new school facilities.

This appeared to be the reasoning behind his question, "Are we going to build a new project that will become new slums, or are we going to rehabilitate what we have?"

Clinton also feels that the proposed $1,400,000 program will lead to a large influx of low income families into Ellenville to move into the old homes vacated by those who have moved to other areas.

Saugerties District Joins the Parade, Requests Share of County Sales Tax

SAUGERTIES —

Saugerties Central School District this week joined other school districts in the county which have indicated that they seek a share of any sales tax adopted by the County Legislature.

Arthur F. Simmons, president of the Saugerties School Board asked for public support to notify the county legislators before the Feb. 13 meeting when the decision is expected to be made.

He cited the aroused concerns of Ulster County board members at last week's meeting of the County School Boards Association. Many attending the meeting told of letters written to County legislators that have not been given the courtesy of an answer. "It is extremely important that the sales tax dollars be used where they are most needed," he stated. "If you do not contact your County legislators before February 13, it may be too late."

Simmons noted, "Local taxpayers have been seeking relief from the property tax, and the sales tax offers the only opportunity immediately available. If a good share is devoted to assist education, the increasing impact of the school tax will be lessened. The sales tax has the advantage of collecting from the many transients and visitors to this region and also in sharing in the sales which have shifted from former commercial activities. It has been reported that a number of counties share the receipts (from sales taxes) with the schools."

The board president explained that although the expenditure for educating a pupil is lower in Saugerties than in any other Mid-Hudson school system, the taxpayers still show concern. The costs of education are constantly increasing due to inflation, higher prices on goods and services, higher salaries to be met, and the growing numbers of pupils who must be taught and housed. "It is inevitable," he pointed out, "that each year's budget will be higher than the last. In addition to the problems of next year's budget, we are now confronted with a 5 per cent cut of state aid payments from April 1, 1969 to March 31, 1970. As the state is not on the same fiscal year as the school districts, this will leave Saugerties short over $75,000 of state aid for this year, 1968-69. This throws an unexpected burden on local taxpayer not only next year, but during the current school year, and makes a share in the county sales tax a must."

"We have excellent school systems in this state," Simmons said. "Governor Rockefeller stated in his budget message that personal income in New York State has increased 78 per cent in the last 10 years and that 618,000 new jobs have been developed. The growth of knowledge has been spectacular here and credit is due our schools which have provided the educational background essential to this growth. We cannot afford to send education down hill for lack of support, or we will all be the losers. We should make certain that a good share of the revenue from the county sales tax is directed to the schools of Ulster County."

WINTER ANYONE? — Ulster County got its share of winter topping yesterday as two storms swept over the northeast. Two and a quarter inches accumulation in the city cloaked the statues at academy green and provided a winter wonderland for a passing German Shepherd dog. Five inches of new snow were a welcome sight at Belleayre where gusty winds and six degree temperatures did little to deter the "good to excellent" reports. (Freeman photo by Kruh).

Long Thruway Section Closed Because of Wind-Whipped Snow

By United Press International

High winds whipped across upstate New York early today, causing the Thruway to close down for 223 miles.

Scores of schools were closed, mostly in rural areas, because school buses could not operate safely.

The section from Canajoharie west to Depew, near Buffalo, was ordered closed at 6:15 a.m.

The Thruway Authority said wind-whipped snow made visibility poor and it decided to close the long section early so as to get vehicles off it before many could become stranded.

A heavy storm was reported in progress in Onondaga County, home of industrial Syracuse, and driving was hazardous.

The strong northwest winds, which reached gusts of up to 40 miles per hour at times, came on the heels of a storm that left two to six inches of snow over a wide upstate area. Lewis County, inland from Lake Ontario, reported five to six inches of new snow with heavy drifting and poor visibility.

In the Oneida County town of New Hartford, Route 12 was closed south of Route 5. In Herkimer County, Route 28 was closed in the town of Columbia.

Drifting snow closed Route 374 between Dannemora and Lyon Mountain in the northeast corner of the state.

Early morning temperatures were generally in the teens and low 20s, and the U.S. Weather Bureau said the winds and cold would continue during the day with snow flurries and squalls. Temperatures tonight may drop to zero to 10 above, the bureau said.

Meanwhile, a snowstorm was tapering off early today after dropping more than a foot of snow on New England. Virtually all of the rest of the nation had fair skies.

Strong and blustery northwesterly winds whipped at the huge New England snowfall, creating hazardous conditions, especially in Maine. By early today Greenville reported 18 inches of new snow. Millinocket had a new 13 inches and other points in Maine and western Massachusetts had received from one to 10 inches.

The arctic winds pushed freezing temperatures into the Deep South and cold wave warnings were in effect early today as far south as Georgia and Alabama. Temperatures there dipped into the 20s.

Clear and dry weather blanketed the remainder of the nation with the exception of a few sprinkles in isolated areas of the Pacific Northwest. Early morning lows ranged from 21 below zero at Hibbing, Minn., to 67 at Key West, Fla.

Mayor Glusker to Run Again

ELLENVILLE — Mayor Eugene Glusker told The Freeman Monday that he will seek another reelection bid. The Republicans, however, have not yet decided on a candidate with the election deadline 45 days away.

With Ulster County Assistant District Attorney Albert Lonschein definitely out of the race, the Republicans met Friday night to gain some idea who was available to face Glusker, the 14-year Democratic incumbent, on March 18.

The choice was narrowed to two individuals: Robert Woodhouse, a correctional officer at the Catskill Reformatory at Napanoch, and Rivan Krieger, coordinator for the Catskill Resort Association Inc.

While a tentative agreement appeared to be reached which would have Woodhouse running for mayor and Krieger going Healey, a teacher at the Ellenville Central School System, open, the plan fell apart when it was learned that Woodhouse would rather have a trustee nomination.

While there are two trustee posts open, it is known that present Republican incumbent Edwin Hoar will seek reelection. The choice, then, is the same as before, between Woodhouse and Krieger, but with a difference: which of the two can be persuaded to give up a trustee nomination to run for the top post.

As for the Democrats, incumbent Trustee Walter Grey will seek reelection under the Glusker banner but there appears to be some question as to who the party will put up for the other trustee slot.

As with the Republicans, there appears at this time, two choices, Harold Knox, an executive for the United Aluminum Works of America, and Edward for mayor and Krieger going Healey, a teacher at the Ellenville Central School System.

High School Girl's Tip Leads to Drug Arrest

ELLENVILLE—Hilbert Tunstall, 18, of 150 Main Street, was arrested Monday by County Investigator Thomas Mayone of the office of Dist. Atty. Joseph P. Torracca and village police charged with criminal sale of a dangerous drug.

The arrest was made on information provided authorities by an unnamed teen-age student at Ellenville Central School. Police said the exchange of a quantity of marijuana between Tunstall and the student, took place on a village street.

Tunstall, a former student at the Ellenville school, was arrested before Police Justice Ronald W. Elias, who committed the defendant to county jail and fixed bail at $2,500.

Police Sgt. George A. Sheehey commended the unnamed student for cooperating with authorities. "I hope that other community residents, including students and their parents will follow the example and provide similar information so that local traffic in narcotics can be cubed," Sheehey said.

Mayone at a recent public meeting held here, labeled this area as the second largest in Ulster County where narcotics are used and sold. He noted that New Paltz has the greatest problem dealing with narcotics in the county.

TAPPED BY NIXON — Rita E. Hauser, a New York City attorney, is shown at the White House Monday after being named U. S. representative on the Human Rights Commission of UNESCO. She will head the U. S. delegation to the human rights meeting in Geneva later this month. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Nixon Will Probe Possibility Of Improved Ties With Peking

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite the hard line he laid down on Red China policy last week, President Nixon plans to start a new diplomatic probe later this month into the possibility of improving U.S.-Peking relations. Nixon is considering proposing to the Chinese regime that as a first step the two countries relax travel and communications barriers somewhat. Easing of the U.S. embargo on trade with the Chinese mainland might follow eventually. Some State department officials believe there is an outside chance the Peking regime may be shifting its policy from a high degree of isolation to a more flexible position.

The Limited Hope

The very limited hope held by some experts is based on the fact that Communist China itself proposed last November that the next round of diplomatic talks with the United States should be held Feb. 20—a month after the Nixon administration took office.

The date, which the State Department accepted by agreement with President-elect Nixon's advisers at the time, was coupled with a Chinese proposal which some officials here considered hopeful that the two countries make an agreement "on the five principles for peaceful coexistence."

The principles include respect for territorial integrity, non-aggression, noninterference, equality and living together in peace. The United States and China have held unofficial meetings for several years in Warsaw, Poland.

President Nixon was asked at his news conference a week ago about his "plans" for improving relations with Communist China. He immediately declared opposition to admitting the country to the United Nations under present circumstances. He also said he saw no prospect of any change in U.S. policy "until some changes occur on their side."

Despite this public posture, the President and his advisers are reportedly actively interested in finding out whether the Chinese may in fact be at a point of exploring new relations with the United States and possibly other countries.

In the Warsaw meeting, therefore, U.S. Ambassador Walter Stoessel Jr. probably will be authorized to suggest a lowering of travel barriers and an easing of limitations on other means of communication.

The Nixon administration's basic policy in this situation in this situation is said to be one of readiness for "friendly relations," with any country willing to reciprocate.

But the issues are far more complicated than that. The United States has itself been an issue of bitter controversy between Red China and the Soviet Union, and any move Washington makes is bound to be regarded suspiciously in Moscow as well as Peking.

Thus at a time when Nixon hopes to get active and successful cooperation with Moscow in making peace in the Middle East and in limiting deployment of nuclear missiles, he is not likely to go out of his way to upset the Soviets by making overtures to Red China.

Yet there are pressures on the President from Congress to at least explore the possibility of opening up contracts with mainland China after 20 years of near total separation.

Throughout this time the central dispute between Washington and Peking has been over the Chinese Nationalist Government of President Chiang Kai-shek on the island of Formosa.

Nixon, Security Unit Confer; Spotlight Holds on Mideast

WASHINGTON (AP) — Another meeting of the National Security Council—fifth since President Nixon took office—kept the administration spotlight on Middle East tensions today.

The meetings of top intelligence, diplomatic and military aides assumed an added dimension with confirmation Monday that Nixon was thinking of an early spring visit to Western Europe.

Although the Arab-Israeli conflict got top billing at today's session, other areas of foreign policy, including perhaps discussion of the proposed trip abroad and relations with Red China, were on the agenda.

Despite Nixon's preoccupation with the explosive Mideast situation, he found room today in his crowded schedule for a morale-boosting trip to another Cabinet department—this time labor.

Nixon planned similar trips the rest of the week to the Post Office and Commerce departments, plus a meeting with Republican congressional leaders

Wednesday, another news conference Thursday to be telecast live from the White House, and a Cabinet meeting Friday.

The White House also announced Monday the President plans this weekend to make his first trip to his Key Biscayne, Fla., vacation spot since he moved into the White House. But it won't be entirely a pleasure trip, Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said.

Going along for "some foreign policy meetings" will be Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, the President's special assistant for national security affairs. Nixon took up problems of the city at a meeting of his urban affairs council Monday. Then he spent an hour and 40 minutes visiting at the Housing and Urban Development and Agriculture departments.

Nixon stressed to top officials in both agencies that the success of the administration depends on their leadership and on the "competence and dedication" of the thousands of career government employees.

Nixon also made two top-level appointments of New Yorkers Monday.

He named New York State Commissioner of Education Dr. James E. Allen Jr. to the dual jobs of assistant secretary of education and U.S. commissioner of education.

For the past 13 years Allen has held the New York post, which also includes serving as president of the University of the State of New York. Nixon called it "one of the most highly regarded and comprehensive educational posts in the nation."

Nixon added a woman to the U.S. representation at the United Nations. He named attractive, dark-haired Rita Hauser, 34, a specialist in international law, to serve on the U.N. Human Rights Commission, a post once held by Eleanor Roosevelt.

Educator Will Guide Foreign Aid

By H. L. SCHWARTZ III
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration has picked John A. Hannah, president of Michigan State University and architect of its pioneer adventures in helping underdeveloped countries, to guide the nation's embattled foreign aid program.

Hannah, staunch Republican and long-time friend of President Nixon, was expected to submit his resignation to the Democratic-controlled MSU board of regents tonight.

But he indicated in a statement released in Detroit Monday night that problems of succession—former Michigan Gov. G. Mennen Williams was reportedly to take his place—could delay a "fulltime role in the federal government" until spring or later.

Administration sources in Washington confirmed Hannah's selection after announcement of two other high level appointments.

Dual Jobs

Dr. James E. Allen Jr., New York State commissioner of Education for the past 13 years, was named to the dual jobs of U.S. commissioner of education and assistant secretary of health, education and welfare.

Rita Hauser, 34-year-old lawyer, linguist and striking beauty, was named to the U.S. delegation to the United Nations with rank of ambassador.

Mrs. Hauser, cochairman of New Yorkers for Nixon during the campaign, will be the U.S. representative to the Human Rights Commission and Economie and Social Council.

Selection of the 66-year-old Hannah to head the Agency for International Development, puts a tough, no-nonsense businessman-educator in charge of an agency whose basic mission faces almost certain change.

Increasingly disgruntled Congresses have slashed away at the 22-year-old program so much in recent years that President Lyndon B. Johnson asked only $2.7 billion for it in his final budget.

That was the lowest figure ever sought for overseas assistance in its 22-year-old history and was widely regarded as indication Johnson was not against congressional—and some Nixon administration—suggestions the private sector assume a far bigger role.

During his 27-year reign as Michigan State president, Hannah pioneered involving universities in foreign aid. The University, currently active in six Asian countries, was the first to undertake a government contract to help build up the regime of the late South Vietnamese president, Ngo Dinh Diem.

By putting Allen in charge of U.S. education programs, Nixon has selected a man who pioneered busing of school children to correct racial imbalance in New York State schools.

Radical Departure

Robert H. Finch, secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, said combining that job with the rank of HEW assistant secretary was a "radical departure."

A native of West Virginia and graduate of its Davis and Elkins College, Allen has a doctorate from Harvard. He turned down the education commissioner's job under John F. Kennedy after giving it "serious thought."

"I happen to believe integration is an important element in getting quality education," Allen told newsmen Monday. He said he was against busing "unless it improves educational opportunity."

Jury Awards $340,000 In Hospital Law Suit

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A State Supreme Court jury has awarded a father of six $340,000 following a medical malpractice suit stemming from the death of his wife after she gave birth to her sixth child.

The jury announced its decision Monday.

The defendants in the case were Doctors Hospital in the suburban Town of Tonawanda, where Mrs. Regina DeLang, 39, died, and Dr. John Molea, an osteopath who now resides in Columbus, Ohio, her attending physician.

The jury awarded $250,000 plus nearly $75,000 in interest to Robert J. DeLang of nearby Clarence for the "wrongful death" of his wife. They also awarded $15,000 for his wife's conscious pain and suffering.

According to testimony taken in the case, Mrs. DeLang was left in the care of an intern who was on duty alone in the 60-bed osteopathic hospital.

Mrs. DeLang reportedly died of loss of blood caused by internal hemorrhaging leading to shock and cardiac arrest about 15 hours after delivering her child, a boy.

Court personnel said the award was believed to be one of the largest in any civil action heard in Erie County.

You can heat 2½ houses with oil for what it costs to heat 1 house with electricity*

There's no doubt about it. Just take your oil bill for last winter. Multiply by 2½. That's about what electric heat would cost. Let's say your oil bill was $200. Then, electric heat would cost about $500. You pay $300 more every year. Over a 20-year mortgage your oil savings of $300 a year could add up to over $10,000—and that's based on a low mortgage rate of 5%!

Remember, no fuel is cleaner than oil. No fuel is more powerful. Oil heats water as much as 5 times faster than electricity. And if you want individual room temperatures, you can have that with any fuel. But that means changing perhaps seven or eight thermostats all the time and keeping doors closed between rooms. Who needs that?

Why pay so much more and get so much less? Stay with modern oil heat and count your blessings. And count your money, too!

For more information about oil heat, modernizing your system, installing a water heater, just call your local heating oil dealer. He will be glad to give you the true, provable facts and at absolutely no obligation on your part.

A message to those Americans who don't happen to think the land of milk and honey is going all sour.

Our country is in a strange mood these days.

Uncertainty surrounds us.

So what can you do about it?

Well, first of all, maybe you should take a long, hard look at this country of ours. Maybe we should look at our healthy side as well as our ills.

And maybe, just maybe, you'll find we're not all that bad.

Sure we have our problems. And they're not going to go away if you just stand along the sidelines as a spectator.

But they might start to go away if you seriously want to do something for your country.

A U.S. Savings Bond is one way. Let's say you fork over $18.75 of your hard-earned cash. Through a Payroll Savings Plan where you work, or at your bank. That will give you

Wild Mouse Chase

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — British painter Terence Cuneo unintentionally led security police here on a wild goose chase.

Cuneo puts a tiny mouse into each of his paintings. The captain and officers of a passenger liner, learning this, tried in vain to find the rodent in the print of a Cuneo painting hanging in an officer's cabin.

Eventually they cabled the publisher asking where the mouse was and received the answer: "Up the telegraph post first right." Police found the message suspicious and boarded the ship for an explanation. They stayed to help find the mouse.

Right to Education

"If a person on a college campus is not there to gain a college education, he does not have a right to an education paid for by the taxpayers." With this cry, Rep. Edith Green, Oregon Democrat, chairman of the House subcommittee on higher education, announced she is "sick and tired" of a minority making it impossible for the majority who want to attend classes to do so, and she is going to do something about it.

Mrs. Green may be able to do what has stumped college and university administrations from coast to coast. She plans to hold hearings next month to take a total look at higher education in this country, focusing on campus disorders, with the idea of building a base for withholding Federal aid from students who disrupt college life.

It is a long overdue probe. Mrs. Green came to it only after she noted that the same students who were at Columbia rioting appeared in Chicago to try to disrupt the Democratic National Convention. To her, that meant that rioting was their first concern, not education.

Her determination is simple and clear cut. She feels that Congress should determine who is qualified for support by taxpayers, and that aid should go only to qualified students. Qualifications would be set by Congress and administered by the colleges. That sounds fair, and should go a long way to eliminate riots and assure quiet on campus.

Safety in the Schools

The slaying last week of the assistant principal of a high school in Washington and the demand of the school teachers for protection and prevention of violence in the schools is symptomatic of the violence in big cities across the country.

In his first press conference, President Nixon told of his own personal experience with violence in the streets, which he has vowed he would stop. He had told the Secret Service he wanted to take a walk and was gently restrained. "I find, of course, that taking a walk here in the District of Columbia, and particularly in the evening hours, is now a very serious problem, as it is in some other major cities," he said.

He also reported that a White House employee had had her purse snatched in the vicinity of the White House, "which brings it very close to home." So he has ordered better lighting for the area—the opposite of what former President Johnson did when he turned off the lights in the White House to save money.

Nixon pledged that his campaign commitment to safety in the streets is a major commitment of his Administration. He will pursue it as President. He has instructed Attorney General Mitchell to give top priority to safety in the streets, both in the District, and in the nation at large.

Vietnam Peace This Year

The first high official of the Nixon Administration to hazard a guess as to the outcome of the peace talks in Paris says he expects it to come before the end of this year. He is U. Alexis Johnson, the State Department's senior career diplomat, who is the Under Secretary of State for Political Affairs-designate.

Under questioning at his confirmation hearing before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, U. A. Johnson was asked when he saw an end to the war in Vietnam. He had just returned from Saigon, where he had gone at President Nixon's behest, and conferred with Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker, so he was well informed of the situation there.

"My own feeling, my own hope, would be that we would be able to see the end, or arrive at some sort of agreement about the end of this year," Johnson said. "It will take about a year of hard slugging, both at the battlefield and at the table, to show results. It took two years in Korea. I think we need a calm, steady determination on our side, and when the other side sees this, I think we will be able to see results."

Johnson does not anticipate a cease-fire in Vietnam as a prelude to the end of the war. "Just conceptually, it's awfully hard to think of a cease-fire in South Vietnam, even in good faith," he suggested. "In this kind of war, a cease fire is the end result of your negotiations and arrangements, not the beginning."

In this, he was echoing what President Nixon told his first press conference. "When you have a guerrilla war, in which one side may not even be able to control many of those who are responsible for the violence in the area, the cease-fire may be meaningless."

The President then stated the substantive objectives of the United States in Paris, beginning with the restoration of the demilitarized zone, mutual withdrawal of the military forces of the United States and North Vietnam, self-determination by the people of South Vietnam without outside interference and an exchange of prisoners. They seem simple enough given good faith but they will take months of debate — with continued success in the field of battle — to bring peace.

Suddenly, It's Spring

David Lawrence Says

Narcotics Seen as Cause Of Crime in Washington

WASHINGTON — It is becoming more and more evident that crime is the biggest single issue before the American people, and that the traffic in "dope" is directly related to the number of youths who steal purses or wallets and to the motivation of criminals who repeatedly engage in armed robberies and assaults.

President Nixon laid stress on the narcotic problem in his statement last week outlining a plan for dealing with crime in the District of Columbia. Conditions are becoming so bad in the nation's capital that businessmen generally are aroused. They are pleading for constructive action and urging it in full-page newspaper ads.

What would deter many persons from criminal activities is the knowledge that the courts will grow stiffer about granting bail, and that heavier prison sentences will be meted out than ever before to robbers, rapists and killers. Mr. Nixon's statement on the illegal traffic in drugs reads as follows:

"Although the narcotics traffic in the District of Columbia is apparently not dominated by organized crime, it has become an acute and growing problem. It is a direct cause of much of the district's crime, by driving the narcotic user to commit crime to support his habit. Many armed robberies, assaults, and bank holdups are directly related to narcotics use."

"Consequently, I have instructed the U.S. Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs. The bureau has assured me that they will also increase their co-operation with the metropolitan police department in enforcement, training and in making available additional laboratory facilities and expert and technical assistance."

"I have also directed the bureau and the Department of Justice to seek more effective application of the civil commitment provisions of the narcotics rehabilitation act of 1966, which has not yet been widely used."

Many victims of the "dope" habit need care and rehabilitation at some institution, but sometimes the process of getting admission is discouragingly complicated. The law prohibits help for those who voluntarily seek hospital treatment and enables parents or relatives to obtain commitment in institutions for those who refuse to submit to such care.

What seems to be most needed to deter crime is a nationwide educational campaign about narcotics. Parents often do not know the dangers involved, and their teenage children are not, therefore, informed about the risks they take. It could be very helpful if clergymen organized special groups to counsel the people of their communities on the problems involved in the use of "dope."

Teachers in schools could talk about the subject in their classes so word would spread among the young people of a city.

The conditions in Washington, incidentally, are not much different from those in other cities. It is true that there is an inadequate number of policemen here. While plans are being made to increase the law-enforcement personnel, this cannot be done overnight. Meanwhile, publicity by the press, radio and TV is essential, and it will then be supplemented by more word-of-mouth conversations on the whole topic of drugs, for instance, and its relationship to crime.

Popular impressions that light sentences will be given to purse snatchers and others committing such crimes need to be changed by the action of federal, state and local authorities. The laws which fix sentences, if revised to provide heavier penalties, could reduce crime in America. But what is prohibited in existing laws is not fully explained in schools and colleges as well as in the various neighborhoods of cities where parents who are not newspaper readers do not know about or fully understand the dangers confronting their teenagers as they join reckless gangs.

The federal government has a responsibility not only to intensify its efforts to prevent the smuggling of "dope" into this country but to prosecute those who are engaged in interstate operations relating to assaults, murders and other crimes.

Up to now the attention of federal authorities has been focused on what is called "organized" crime, and it has been left to states and cities to deal with what might be called "unorganized" crime, but the evidence indicates that there is an interstate movement of individuals who either engage in riots and "demonstrations" themselves or incite others to defy the police and destroy property. A certain percentage of these persons, officials say, are stimulated by "dope."

skills noted. Of course, turnover would be rapid in this group.

This stockpiling of people should be paralleled by a revised stockpiling of materials. There are huge stockpiles in existence as a result of a program expanded after World War II. But these reserves of 77 items, from aluminum and copper to titanium and lead, are part of an inventory that was designed to insure that military and other essential government operations will have the raw materials needed in war. The stocks are not aimed at providing the additional cushion required to prevent unbalancing war-caused inflation. Witness the rapid rise of prices in the Korean war.

Need exists, in addition, for well-designed food stockpiles, with a rapid turnover to prevent deterioration.

The Department of Defense must review more thoroughly its own inventory of equipment and spare parts and its standby contracts with producers to determine whether these inventories and contracts are adequate to meet required wartime build-ups with a minimum of strain on the economy. From the data now available it is not clear that they are.

Anticipation Can Prevent Wars' Inflationary Surges

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — In the build-ups of World War II, Korea and Vietnam, the surge in demand for products and the manpower needed to produce them caused rapid price gains in a wide variety of products.

In each case, this spread into general inflation.

If employment is high and surpluses and inventories are low at the start of such a crisis, economists say the competition for labor and goods is certain to force wages and prices up across the board.

Historically, the labor problem was solved in part by "Rosie the riveter" and by drawing more men off the farms. These solutions are less workable today with the farm population at a low level and with a higher percentage of women working than in the past.

Thus, in any future crises it will be impossible, of course to automate or otherwise modernize overnight industries and farms which will be asked to rapidly increase output and therefore quickly require numbers of additional workers.

However, industries and farms which have been heavily mechanized or automated, with a strong emphasis on streamlined techniques, can more easily and more rapidly expand production than their less modernized associates. They can accomplish production step-ups with smaller increases in labor.

But with all this, a substantial call on men, material and food, as in World War II, Korea and Vietnam could not be met with modernization alone.

Improved standby plans would be required for future emergencies:

A growing pool of retired men and women, still "young" by modern standards. Many of these retirees are talented and well-trained. Prudence would suggest that, like scientists, they, their skills and availability be catalogued for emergencies. They could be an industrial reserve, as it were. Many in this group undoubtedly would be willing to undergo brush-up training from time to time.

A pool of teen-agers of talent not employed these days, some because of the restrictions of child labor laws and some because of the middle-class affluence of their parents. These youngsters should be identified and their

Drew Pearson Says Nixon and Ted Kennedy Talk About Youthful Unrest in U.S.

WASHINGTON — The two men considered most likely to face each other in the 1972 presidential election, Dick Nixon and Ted Kennedy, had a long, cordial visit the other day.

President Nixon steered Sen. Kennedy into a corner for a private talk during a luncheon with Senate leaders. Kennedy recalled their first meeting in the 1950s when Nixon, then Vice President, and the late Jack Kennedy, then a Senator, had offices across a Senate corridor from each other.

As Ted remembered it, he dropped by his brother's office early one morning before it opened. He made himself comfortable upon a suitcase, reading a newspaper, while he waited for someone to open the door.

Nixon spotted him in the corridor and invited him into his office for a 45-minute visit.

The President also recalled that they had met again in 1960 in front of New York City's Colony Restaurant. Ted was accompanied by his father, who commented on the approaching election.

"If my son Jack doesn't make it," Nixon quoted old Joe Kennedy, "I hope you do."

After an exchange of recollections, Nixon and Kennedy talked earnestly about youthful unrest. They agreed that youth riots and demonstrations weren't provoked by the communists but were part of a worldwide ferment on both sides of the Iron Curtain.

Goldwater's Revenge

Arizona Sen. Barry Goldwater, still an unreconstructed conservative after his four years' absence from Washington, has invoked his senatorial prerogative to block the appointment of Maryland's ex-Governor Ted McKeldin to the Indian Claims Commission.

McKeldin is a Republican with excellent political credentials. But he made the mistake, in Goldwater's view, of supporting Lyndon Johnson for President in 1964. To compound the offense, McKeldin came out for Johnson's reelection early in 1968.

President Nixon is willing to forgive this political indiscretion, and McKeldin has the support of Maryland's top Republicans. No less than Vice President Agnew has urged McKeldin upon Nixon.

Goldwater, however, asked Senate GOP leader Everett Dirksen to block the appointment, which Dirksen is obliged to do under the unwritten rules of senatorial courtesy.

The President asked Dirksen, pointblank, about the McKeldin nomination, he other day. Dirksen hemmed and hawed about McKeldin's refusal to take a job as Assistant Secretary of the Navy. The tough-haired Republican leader never mentioned to Nixon, however, that Goldwater had black-balled the appointment.

Safeguarding Nixon

The taxpayers are spending a small fortune to convert President Nixon's Florida retreat into a suitable vacation spot.

The government is quietly extending a seawall, building a heliport and installing navigational, signal and security equipment for Nixon at Key Biscayne, Fla.

The cost shouldn't be resented by the taxpayers, however, since the improvements are absolutely necessary to protect him and keep him in constant touch with world problems.

We were unfair to ex-President Johnson, incidentally, when we reported that he had refused to turn back government equipment on his LBJ ranch.

It is true that he is keeping the signal tower at the landing strip and a couple of government trailers. The government has calculated that it would cost more to remove these items than to leave them in Texas.

Certain signal and security equipment also remains at the ranch for the use of the Secret Service, which continues to protect Johnson.

As early as last October, however, LBJ ordered the government equipment on his ranch returned. White House aide Larry Temple reported to Johnson in a memo dated Oct. 21:

"Pursuant to your instructions, I talked individually with the following people: Joe Moody (Deputy Administrator of the General Services Administration), Col. Haywood Smith (Military Aide), Col. Jack Albright (White House Communications), and Clint Hill (Secret Service Agent in charge of White House detail.) "I told each of them that they should begin to remove all equipment and facilities, located at the LBJ ranch, which were owned by their agencies and which would not be authorized items of support of a former President."

Thompson Yanked

For some weird reason, the Nixon administration promptly accepted the resignation of the most important American diplomat in Europe. Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson in Moscow.

Thompson, a sincere patriot, had wanted to resign but had been prepared to remain on the job until summer or even fall until his replacement could be found. Instead, he had to come home so suddenly that he had no opportunity to say goodbye to top Russian officials.

Chairman Breshnev, Premier Kosygin and Foreign Minister Gromyko were all out of Moscow when Thompson left the post where he had served twice during very crucial periods. He was able to pay farewell calls on a few lesser officials, but had to wind them up in about a week.

Ambassador Thompson is the man who helped guide the improvement in relations between the United States and Russia under President Johnson. He is the key man on such vital questions as missile limitation and the anti-ballistic missile system.

While his advice can be used to good advantage in Washington, diplomats were shocked that he was removed so unceremoniously from Moscow.

Henry J. Taylor Says Nixon's Plan for Middle East

President Richard M. Nixon will put back on the rails a vast basic plan to relieve the underlying, explosive pressures in the Middle East.

He believes that unless something is done so compelling, valuable and dramatic that no Mideast nation can refuse to go along, both the wretched poverty and the political dynamite will remain, expand an ultimately explode.

The President views the vital Mideast factors as three: hatred, refugees and water. He sees the three as interrelated as a set of Chinese ivory balls, each inside the other, and thus this interrelation defines the only feasible approach for a plan.

The plan, then something of its history: The placing in the Middle East of three huge salt water-distilling plants, nuclear-powered; two on the Mediterranean coast and the third at the north end of the Gulf of Aqaba on the Red Sea.

They would produce a billion gallons of sweet water a day.

What irrigation has done so marvelously for California's Imperial Valley, the sweet water would do for thousands of square miles that have never before supported human life other than on a nomadic basis.

The by-product, electric power, carries its own obvious rewards, and is carefully integrated into the program.

There are approximately a million homeless Arab refugees, dating back tragically to the 1948 Israel-Arab war. These new fertile lands, stretching from the barren areas of Egypt to north Jordan and beyond, would be open for their settlement — unbelievable wretchedness and utter despair changed to productivity. It would revolutionize the entire area from the Nile to the Euphrates, including the embittered Palestine region.

The construction period itself would supply an immediate safety valve. Tens of thousands of these displaced and unskilled people would be required to build the plants, pipelines, irrigation system, reservoirs and power grid.

The first plant would produce about 400 million gallons of sweet water a day. This alone would equal the total natural flow of the Jordan River, whereas for years using even a fraction of the flow has been bogged down by regional blackbills.

The three plants would be built and operated by the International Atomic Energy Agency, long headquartered in Vienna. The full range of enemies in the Israel-Arab war — all of them — are members of the I.A.E.A. All are officially qualified to join in the formation plans within the I.A.E.A. Moreover, our country already has allocated to the I.A.E.A. more than sufficient uranium fuel for the need of all three plants.

The project would be self-sustaining, which is a critical factor so far as our Congress and the American people are concerned.

The initial requirement would be for approximately $200 million to begin constructing the first part of the three-plant system. For this there would be set up a chartered corporation like Comsat, which is involved with communications satellites. Half the stock would be bought by our government and half by private and government investors through the security markets of the world. The immense success in financing Comsat is tested approximately for this.

Both the water and electricity could be sold at relatively low prices and still meet the requirements of a good self-sustaining profit. The problem is neither financial nor physical; both are practical. The problem is political. And this would be hopeless were the plan less bold and the rewards to the people of the entire Middle East less great.

Former Atomic Energy Commission Chairman Lewis L. Strauss first sent this plan to former President Dwight D. Eisenhower in a June 23, 1967, memorandum. General Eisenhower forwarded it to President Lyndon B. Johnson with an all-out endorsement.

In it he stated that "by proceeding in this way 'the morass in which the powers are presently floundering might well be the beginning of a new life in the lands of wretched despair.'"

But, beyond some lip service and a sketchy word to Congress, the plan was merely handed for detailed study to White House Scientific Adviser Donald F. Hornig.

President Nixon finds that what is dead should not be dead and that merely talking "peace" in this pressure-cooker part of the world is like trying to remove the marks of leprosy with a rubber eraser.

But, beyond some lip service and a sketchy word to Congress, the plan was merely handed for detailed study to White House Scientific Adviser Donald F. Hornig.

BERRY'S WORLD

"Are you thinking of a winter vacation—or bikinis?"

"A GOOD SERVE . . . BUT" — Charles Patrick, tennis Coach at Bard College, keeps a close eye on a future champ at the Northern Dutchess Racquet Club's new indoor court at the Dutchess County Fairgrounds near Rhinebeck. The club offers novice players free help at Saturday morning clinics in an effort to "foster tennis among young people of the area," says its President Dr. Frederick Zipser (Freeman photo by Haines).

No More 'Off Seasons' For Area Tennis Buffs

By SHANE CROSBY

RHINEBECK — Tennis buffs in the Kingston-Rhinebeck area can now look forward to a local, indoor, heated court for some 30 weeks of what would have been the "off season," thanks to the efforts of this town's Northern Dutchess Racquet Club.

The club, started by fewer than 20 tennis players from the Rhinebeck area, has acquired a building at the Dutchess County Fairgrounds just outside the village of Rhinebeck. During the more than six months that the fair is closed they have been permitted to install a regulation 120 by 60 foot court for non-profit use.

Emphasis on Public

Club President Dr. Frederick Zipser of Red Hook called it the only indoor tennis court open to the public within a 40-mile radius of Rhinebeck. He said netters are now able to play here at a time when they would have to either travel a great distance or mothball their racquets until spring.

Special

He emphasized the scope of the court by saying that membership in the racquet club is not necessary to play. "We want this thing to be used by the public."

Kingston netters are included in the ranks of the court users, Dr. Zipser adds, since the city is about as close to the court as he is in Red Hook.

The court is open from 8 a. m. to 10 p. m. weekdays and Saturdays. A clinic is held on Saturday mornings with Bard College tennis coach Charles Patrick available free to beginners. Hours can also be scheduled on Sundays.

A charge is levied for use of the court. Dr. Zipser said the charge is to help with the initial $4,000 cost of the equipment, footed by the charter members of the racquet club. It also includes light costs as well as upkeep.

The more warm-blooded brand of tennis player had better bring some quarters along if planning to bat the old ball around on the colder days. Heat for the court is supplied via a former coin laundry slot machine hooked up to a radiant heating system. Four quarters will keep the otherwise heatless building above the bone-chilling point.

There is no charge for participation in the clinic, that, the president said, is the best way of generating interest in a community court. All that is required for the clinic, he said, is that youngster (or adults) bring their own tennis racquets, sneakers and warm clothing. Youngsters from 9-years-old on up are welcome, he said. He doubts that any younger than that would not be permitted, citing a need for concentration and willingness to learn as a necessity.

Favorable Reaction

Community reaction to the court seems favorable with commendations coming from the Rhinebeck Chamber of Commerce as well as from individuals.

Dr. Zipser said both Red Hook Central School and Bard College were looking at the court as a possible pre-season warmup spot for their tennis teams.

Most Northeastern tennis teams find it difficult to practice before the spring season begins, due to lack of winter facilities. The ones that have closed courts, he said, are able to start the season in top gear, often leaving their not so fortunate opponents in the dust.

Honor System Operation

The operation is based on an honor system with players obtaining a court key from Mrs. C. Neuberger of Rhinebeck who has charge of telephone reservations and collection of court charges. The doctor said that if the public "wants it, they will take care of it." Players will find posted directions for heating and lighting the court and are only asked to shut off the equipment as they leave.

Whether the court will be continued next year or not depends on the public reaction and the fairground officials making the same offer to the club.

The entire operation depends on the demands of the fair, he said. Fair officials have indicated to the doctor that the court may be used as long as there is no need for fairground with the planned schedule of the exhibit space. He said the fair club, both running about a 30-schedule is almost back to back, week season.

MONEY TALKS

We Could Use a Man like Ben Franklin

Clifford A. Henze
President
Kingston Savings Bank

Ask who Ben Franklin was and the man in the street may tell you he's the fellow who flew a kite and found electricity in lightning.

It's true that Franklin made this important scientific discovery which influenced human living more than any other forward step since the introduction of printing. For it and many important inventions he was internationally honored.

But Franklin had even more important qualifications that made him the most famous American of his time, more celebrated even than George Washington, and certainly one of the outstanding leaders of all American history.

More than half of his 84 years were devoted to selfless and uncompensated public service. In the crucial period of the country's formation, it was Franklin who was most frequently called upon to discharge vital missions.

It was Franklin who persuaded the British government to repeal the hated Stamp Act of 1765. The celebrated British statesman Edmund Burke said that Franklin's appearance before a parliamentary committee reminded him of a master examined by a parcel of school-boys.

It was Franklin who joined a committee of five to draw up the Declaration of Independence.

It was Franklin who, in his 70th year, was chosen one of three in 1776 to solicit colonial support from the king of France. At this moment of history, he was one of the most talked about men of the world, a member of every important learned society of Europe, one of eight foreign members of the Royal Academy of Sciences in Paris. He was an object of greater popular interest than any other man in France. And he managed to obtain 26 million francs from a government that was not only at war but bankrupt.

It was Franklin, despite the ails of a man of 75 years in a primitive medical age and despite his plea to Congress to be relieved of further duties, who was given the Congressional commission to negotiate peace with Britain.

And it was Franklin who, with Washington himself, was more responsible than any other American for the final adoption of the Constitution of the United States in 1787.

He was an able writer whose pen flared with a vision for America and its democratic foundations. "I have long been of the opinion," he wrote to Lord Kames in 1760, "that the foundations of the future grandeur and stability of the British empire lie in America; and though like other foundations they are low and little now. They are nevertheless broad and strong enough to support the greatest political structure that human wisdom ever created."

This was a great man who believed that responsibility begins in the person and in the home. His Poor Richard's Almanac contains homilies which testify to the need for honesty and integrity ("The second vice is lying; the first is running in debt.")

We would find it profitable to re-read the life and accomplishments of this outstanding American. It would renew our confidence in the values of this learned society of Europe, one kind of leadership in our society.

'Suspicious Arrangements'Ottinger Opposes N.Y. Power Firm

NEW YORK (UPI) — Rep. Richard L. Ottinger said Monday he has requested the Atomic Energy Commission to reject a State Power Authority application to build a nuclear power plant because of "suspicious" financial arrangements.

The Westchester Democrat charged at a news conference there has been no public revelation of the financial details of an agreement between the authority and the Niagara-Mohawk Power Corp.

No N-M Comment

(In Albany, a Niagara - Mohawk spokesman said the utility would not comment because it had not seen a text of Ottinger's statement.)

Ottinger, a member of a House communications and power subcommittee, said the authority purchased 702 acres of land on the shores of Lake Ontario from Niagara-Mohawk and plans to finance a $222 million nuclear power plant, which the private firm will operate.

"The project represents a wholly unwarranted subsidy of a private utility by a public agency of the state," Ottinger said. "Niagara - Mohawk's only investment in this 80 megawatt 'windfall' is to supply personnel and to operate the facility."

The authority submitted its application for AEC approval of the project on Dec. 31. If approved, the plant would be in operation sometime in 1972.

Ottinger called the contract arrangement "unusual and disturbing." He charged the Power Authority has not yet revealed the price of the 702 acres of land it purchased from Niagara-Mohawk and that the amount of land "seems a bit excessive."

In addition, he said, the authority took over a Niagara-Mohawk contract with the General Electric Corp. to build the power plant's reactor. There was neither bidding nor public hearings, he said.

Should Know Details

"I think the public deserves to know the details of the arrangement and what Niagara-Mohawk's benefits will be," Ottinger said. "If it is such a good deal, why did Niagara-Mohawk let the state get into it?"

The congressman accused the Power Authority of not making clear to the public just how the electricity will be sold once the plant is in operation and said it used the same engineering firm to evaluate the project that designed the proposed plant.

"I think that involved a question of propriety," he said. The authority was given approval to build and operate nuclear power plants by the legislature last March.

"In my view, the arrangement made by the authority is a subterfuge of the intent of that legislation," Ottinger said.

He said the legislation was created to develop publicly owned power sources to provide both low-cost electricity and to serve as a "substitute for competition."

The proposed Niagara-Mohawk project is "a funny kind of public power," he said.

Horticulture Exhibitor's School Set at Fairgrounds

RHINEBECK — An exhibitor's school for horticulture entrants in the 124th Dutchess County Fair, Aug. 19-24 will be conducted for the first time during the last week in March.

A two-hour evening meeting, it will be held at the Farm and Home Center, Millbrook at a date to be announced.

Mrs. Lizette Schaefer of LaGrangeville, superintendent of the fair's horticultural committee, indicated that the school will aid gardeners in selecting the best varieties of flowers for showing as well as providing information for growing proper specimens.

The school, open to anyone interested, will feature talks by James E. Ashton, Cooperative Extension horticulturist and William E. Swihura of Staatsburg. The 1969 Horticulture Show premium books will be available at the school.

Conflicting Testimony at Mutiny Trial

By DONALD B. THACKREY

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Three Army Military Police officers gave conflicting testimony Monday concerning events which led to charges of mutiny against 27 soldiers for holding a sitdown strike at the Presidio Stockade.

The testimony came as the army opened its case in the court martial of Pvs. Lawrence W. Reidel, 20, Crescent City, Calif., and Louis S. Oszepinski, 21, Florida, N.Y. They are the first of the 27 defendants to be tried.

Capt. Robert S. Lamont, correctional officer for the stockade, testified his mind was "focused on mutiny" when the protest occurred last Oct. 14.

However, he denied he was "setting up a mutiny" by reading Article 94 to the prisoners, having photographers shoot the group from all angles, drawing up military police troops in the area and stationing another officer at the opposite side of the group to signal that Lamont's voice was audible.

Lamont said he went to the stockade on the morning of the sit-down strike but was unable to read Article 94, the description of mutiny, to the group because the soldiers were singing and chanting "We Shall Overcome." "We want (attorney Terence) Hallinan," and "We want the press."

The captain said he left the stockade and read the article from the Uniform Code of Military Justice over a loudspeaker mounted on an MP automobile. Lamont said he then refused to obey it.

Lamont said he had read the mutiny article to stockade prisoners several days earlier when Pvt. Richard Bunch, 19, of Dayton, Ohio, was shot to death during an escape attempt.

The 27 defendants, all white and some veterans of Vietnam, said they held the sit-down strike to protest the fatal shooting of Bunch as well as what they called "unsanitary" stockade facilities.

Memoriam

In loving memory of my husband and our father Joseph P. Ertelt, whom God called home Feb. 4, 1967.

We miss you now, our hearts are sore,
As time goes by, we miss you more.
Your loving smile, your gentle face,
No one can fill your vacant place.
The voice is mute, and stilled the heart
That left us well and true.
Ah, bitter was the trial to part
From one so good as you.
YOUR LOVING WIFE

TODAY'S THOUGHT

By JIM GILPATRIC

As we approach Lincoln and Washington's birthdays, we are reminded of their identical virtues; their principles of personal honesty. Both men handed down a heritage of honesty that later generations, including our own, have all too often shamefully disgraced. Neither man ever prostituted honesty, not even slightly. Both men gained recognition as honest men by simply being honest. Neither man wore lapel buttons worded "Honest Abe" or "Truthful George." By their day by day actions the word got around.

Long before Lincoln became President, and especially during his impoverished years when he sorely needed money, he had opportunities to pocket tainted money, but never did. Washington once said, "I hope I shall always possess firmness and virtue enough to maintain what I consider the most enviable of all titles, the character of an 'honest' man."

In the callous cynicism of present day society, it sometimes seems our moral moorings are being loosened. February 12th and 22nd should remind us of this loosening up and give us reason to do some tightening up before time runs out.

Executive Predicts Marketing Trends

By LEROY POPE
UPI Business Writer
NEW YORK (UPI) — Saturation advertising, employing all media simultaneously, and global operations will be the most striking trends in marketing in 1969, believes W. W. "Foots" Clements, president of Sales and Marketing Executives International.

Clements, who is an executive of the Dr. Pepper Co. of Dallas, said that of almost equal importance will be willingness to break with tradition and experiment in promotion.

"The trend to use humor in advertising and thus avoid pomposity and unreality also will grow," he said.

Sales and Marketing Executives International is a professional society with 28,000 members in 48 nations. It is dedicated to spreading the free enterprise concept of marketing that if you market to meet the people's wants, their needs inevitably will be met in the process.

The opposing marketing philosophy of the Communists and socialists is "that the government first should determine what are the people's needs and market goods to meet them regardless of what people think they want."

Saturation Marketing Dramatic
In New York for a business conference, Clements said dramatic results have been obtained by saturation marketing.

"One of the most successful examples was United Airlines, which caused a 15.4 per cent spurt in domestic passenger mileage in the first month of the campaign," he said.

"In 1962, DuPont considered abandoning Teflon because converters were not using it properly. Instead, after several years of re-educating the converters, DuPont put a saturation advertising campaign."

"Sales of Teflon-coated pots and pans then rose from a low of four million a year to 50 million in three years and are still growing dramatically."

Need International Market
"Many companies find it no longer pays to stick to the domestic market," he said. "In foreign countries, the business man faces ever greater pressures to export. For example, a New Zealand company found its business shrinking because the nation's balance of payments problem reduced its ability to import raw materials. In order to get a bigger material import quota, the company started exporting its finished product and grew faster than ever."

Last year Clements ran a campaign advertising Dr. Pepper as a hot winter drink as well as a cold drink. He says it was successful.

The fact that marketing skill and innovation are the real tests of a company's performance to day should be of great significance to investors, says Clements.

"The companies whose stocks are going to perform best are those with the most intelligent and energetic marketing staffs and programs," he says.

2 Persons Hurt In Greene Crash

CATSKILL — Two persons were injured at 1:55 p.m. Monday when the tow truck in which they were riding was in a collision that involved three tractor-trailers on Route 9W in this Greene County township.

Injured and taken to Greene County Memorial Hospital were Edward Bower Jr., 44, of Catskill, operator of the tow truck, who sustained severe nasal lacerations and Antoine Bower, 38, who suffered abrasions and contusions.

Richard A. Busch, 23, of East Durham, was operating a tractor-trailer south on the highway and the vehicle skidded and jack-knifed as the brakes were applied. Bower stopped his truck and was hit by a tractor-trailer operated by Carl Peterson, 41, of Post Avenue, Catskill. The force of the impact pushed the Bower vehicle into the Busch truck, and along came another tractor-trailer driven by David Brault, 31, of Hobart, and that truck skidded into the Peterson vehicle before hitting a rock ledge, according to a report of Trooper R. C. Rose.

To Grand Jury

Pablo Cruz, 17, of 11 Brewster Street, today waived preliminary examination before City Judge Hubert A. Richter, who referred the second degree assault case to the grand jury. Cruz was arrested Sunday by Kingston police who investigated a complaint that he allegedly stabbed Douglas Brayman, 17, of 24 South Clinton Avenue in the lower back during a fight on Broadway.

Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (UPI)—Stocks opened mixed today in moderately active trading.

There is a good deal of ammunition for the bulls, including the boost in steel prices by Bethlehem, the nation's second leading steel maker, increased automobile sales in January, and record construction spending in December reported by the Commerce Department. News that South Vietnam would be willing to make more concessions at the Paris peace conference if they would have some meaningful result also was expected to encourage traders. However, the threat of renewed hostilities in the Middle East could be a depressing factor, as has been the case recently.

Shortly after the opening, the UPI stock market indicator showed a gain of 0.08 per cent on 269 issues traded. Advances narrowly edged declines, 104 to 90.

Electronics showed scattered strength, while oils moved in both directions. Motors firmed.

Scientific data added 5% among the electronics, while Honeywell gained a full point. RCA picked up 1/4, but National Cash Register dipped 1/4.

Control Data and Litton held unchanged. IBM spurted 1 1/2.

Occidental rose 1/4 in the oils, with Jersey Standard up a similar amount. Atlantic Richfield, trading ex-dividend, eased 1/4. Phillips was off 1/4.

A — Your company should report a sizable increase in both sales and earnings for the 1968 fiscal year ended Oct. 31. Wentworth manufactures a line of low-priced cotton dresses and aprons, a highly competitive field. But a new plant in Texas should begin operations early.

Q — I am in my late 30s this year, which could improve and buying stocks for growth, the company's position. I hold odd lots of AT&T, 1966 and 1967, were resumed last January. Because capitalization is extremely thin, I increase my holdings in these companies or look for other issues?—A.B.

A — National Can has moved up sharply on an improved outlook stemming from its acquisition and modernization programs. Your holdings in this company could be added to on dips. Current weakness in IBM shares also presents an excellent buying opportunity. Representation in the oil industry is advised at this time, and Phillips Petroleum is particularly well situated for purchase. Its recent successes in the North Sea should begin to add to 1969's earnings. Continue to hold the others.

Q — I would appreciate any information on World Vision. —H.D.

A — I can find no publicly held company of that name, but assume you refer to House of Vision, an American Exchange issue. The company owns a chain of 69 dispensing optician's retail outlets and also manufactures ophthalmic instruments. Sales and earnings have shown steady growth with margins maintained at over 7.5 per cent. First 9 months report showed a 7 per cent gain in sales but earnings remained static on an increase in the number of shares outstanding. House of Vision guided by capable management could work out well on a long-term basis.

Q — I have shares of Wentworth Mfg. which have gone up quite a lot. Should I sell them?—J.C.

Area Catholics to Start Overseas Aid Fund Drive

The Most Rev. Terence J. Cooke, Archbishop of New York, announces the participation of the New York Archdiocese in the 23rd annual appeal of the American Catholic Overseas Aid Fund and the appointment of the Right Rev. Msgr. Henry A. Cauley as archdiocesan director.

The nationwide appeal, under the auspices of the Catholic bishops of the United States, will be conducted March 9 to 16 and will be preceded by the Catholic school children's Lenten Collection scheduled to start Feb. 19, Ash Wednesday.

The national goal of the 1969 appeal is $10 million, double that of any previous year. This is due, Msgr. Cauley explains, to the unprecedented demand for relief supplies created by starvation and disease in Biafra, the war in Vietnam and conditions in the Middle East.

The amount sought, he says, is the minimum required for Catholic Relief Services, the overseas aid agency of America.

Village Police Issue Citations

NEW PALTZ — Several citations were issued by village police here over the weekend as officers kept a close eye out for automobile inspection stickers. Police officer Richard Thompson said if the sticker is anything but blue or light green it is invalid.

Four of the violations recorded were for invalid stickers, while the remainder were for moving violations.

Two resulted from a two-car accident in the village Monday morning. Jefferey G. Agocha, 38, of the State University College was driving a car on South Side Road and skidded through a stop sign as he attempted to stop. His car was in collision with a car driven by James E. Hines, 17, of New Paltz. Both drivers were cited, police said. Agocha for failure to stop and Hines for having unsafe tires. Neither was injured.

UCCC Prof on Biology Task Force

STONE RIDGE — An associate professor of Biology at Ulster County Community College has been named one of five American Institute of Biology members to serve on a national task force on the science as given in two-year colleges across the country.

Associate Professor Richard B. Glazer, coordinator of Biology and medical laboratory technology at UCCC, was the only member selected from New York State, said the college.

He will join the task force at its first meeting in March at Montgomery Junior College, Tacoma Park, Md.

The national force has the job of developing guide lines, programs, curriculums, model facilities and basic standards for Biological programs in the colleges. It is also charged with the task of coordinating and communicating with those operating the programs at two-year colleges.

Two Nassau Policemen Hurt in Crash

NEW PALTZ — Two off-duty Nassau County policemen were injured shortly after 7:30 a. m. Monday when the car in which they were riding skidded off the State Thruway about 12 miles south of Kingston and crashed into a tree.

Taken to Kingston Hospital by Doctors Ambulance were Julian Parker, 41, of New Hyde Park, and James Bannen, 21, of Elmont. Parker suffered chest, head and hand injuries and possible rib fractures, and Bannen received head and leg injuries.

An ambulance attendant said the vehicle operated by Parker was northbound when the wheels hit a patch of ice, veered off the pavement as the driver lost control. The car rolled down an embankment and hit a tree.

Many Praise Nixon's Choice of School Boss

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Eight years ago then President John F. Kennedy asked Dr. James E. Allen to become U.S. commissioner of education.

Allen turned him down, preferring to stay on as state education commissioner in New York.

Monday, the 56-year-old educator accepted a second offer from President Nixon — and promptly declared that he was "firmly committed" to desegregation, community participation in school policies and busing students if it would improve their education.

Secretary Robert H. Finch of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) announced the appointment at the White House for Nixon and said Allen would also serve as assistant HEW secretary.

Nixon's decision to name Allen, who has been called the "czar of education" during 14 years as commissioner in New York, brought immediate praise from some quarters.

Former HEW Secretary John W. Gardner, now head of the Urban Coalition, said the President "couldn't have found a better man for the job" and added that the appointment shows Nixon "means to keep education high on the list of national priorities."

Roman Catholic educators also applauded the appointment. The Very Rev. Msgr. James C.

Donohue, director of the division of elementary-secondary education of the U.S. Catholic Conference, said Allen had shown deep "awareness of the complexities of urban education" by his actions in New York.

But the President's choice may not sit very well with Southern politicians, who bitterly attacked Allen's predecessor, Harold Howe II. They charged that Howe had gone beyond congressional mandates to speed integration by withholding or threatening to withhold federal financial aid for education.

Allen told reporters at the White House that he thought he and Howe saw eye to eye on most questions of race and education.

He said he was "firmly committed" to the principle of community involvement in school policy but that school decentralization was not the total answer to problems facing big cities today. He noted, however, that he was leaving behind a major struggle to decentralize New York City schools.

Allen also said he "believes strongly" in school desegregation because it can improve the quality of education.

On the subject of busing, he said he was in favor of it "if it means getting students to a school where they can get a better education than the school they are in."

Green Light Missing To Free Pueblo Crew

CORONADO, Calif. (UPI)—The U.S. Navy Command in the Pacific drew up plans for a raid to free the crew of the Pueblo from North Korean captivity, but it never received a go-ahead from higher up.

The Navy also was prepared to destroy the intelligence ship in the Communist port of Wonsan after its capture but there was no green light on that either.

Such were the highlights Monday of another dramatic day of testimony before a five-admiral court of inquiry.

Lt. Edward R. Murphy Jr., 31, San Diego, executive officer and navigator of the Pueblo, was scheduled to testify in open session today beginning at 9 a.m. PST.

The one witness in the open hearing Monday was Rear Adm. George L. Cassell, chief of staff for operations for the Pacific Fleet at the time of the Pueblo seizure. He is now deputy commander of a NATO naval strike force in the Mediterranean stationed in Naples, Italy.

His testimony largely removed any blame from the U.S. Air Force for not having assisted Bucher when he was radioing desperately for help off the Korean Coast Jan. 23, 1968.

As it turned out, nothing was done.

E. Miles Harvey, Bucher's civilian attorney, asked what subsequent action the Pacific Fleet Command took.

Cassell said he and Adm. John J. Hyland, commander in chief of the Pacific Fleet, discussed putting reconnaissance planes over Wonsan the next day to determine the plight of the Pueblo.

Cassell said he and Hyland and the staff also drew up tentative plans to destroy the Pueblo in port and also "a reprisal or raid" to free the crew.

"Did you consider that feasible?" Harvey asked.

"Yes," said Cassell. "But the final decision was out of our purview. It was a decision to be made at a much higher level."

An estate reportedly valued in excess of $200,000 was left in the last will and testament of the late Miss Elizabeth B. Collier, who died Nov. 30 in a tragic fire in her home at Highland.

Her sister, Katharine B. Collier of 89 Ledge Road, Burlington, Vt., is the executrix and chief beneficiary according to petition for probate filed in the County Surrogate's Office.

Shultz Names Mediator for The Dock Tieup

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Labor George P. Shultz, pressing for all possible efforts to end the seven-week longshoremen's strike, has assigned a special mediator to coordinate the far-flung negotiations.

"I call upon the parties in the strongest possible terms to exert every effort in continuous bargaining sessions to resolve their differences," Shultz said Monday.

The secretary appointed David Cole to coordinate the negotiations which are going on at ports along the East and Gulf coasts.

Cole served as a White House fact-finder during an 80-day Taft-Hartley injunction and later helped reach a tentative agreement in New York.

Despite the Jan. 6 agreement in New York, the AFL-CIO International Longshoremen's Association ordered the strike to continue until settlements are reached with shipping firms in all ports.

The strike of 75,000 longshoremen has stranded hundreds of ships, and Shultz said he is concerned about the growing impact on businesses dependent upon the shipping.

Cited by Police
Walter Hamilton, 57, of 455 Abeel Street, was cited Monday by Kingston police on charges of failure to keep to the right, failure to produce a registration certificate and having no proof of insurance. He was scheduled to appear in City court.

Driver Cited, 14 Violations

Michael Terence Roe, 31, of 185 Green Street, was cited by Kingston police early Monday for 14 vehicle and traffic violations and a charge of apparently making a false statement second degree to police.

The charges stemmed from two chases in which Roe reportedly eluded pursuing police, who authorities said pursued Roe's car to Rosendale where they lost sight of it. Later, police said they spotted the vehicle in the vicinity of Roe's home on Green Street and a second chase took place, with the officers again losing sight of the vehicle.

Roe was taken into custody some time later on a warrant after he told police that someone had stolen his automobile Saturday night.

Police booked Roe on two charges of speeding, five counts of failure to signal, two counts of failure to keep to the right, and two charges of failure to comply with an order of police, and passing a stop sign. Bail was fixed at $1,500 and in lieu of bail he was committed pending disposition of the charges.

RENDEZVOUS ANTENNA — An RCA engineer checks rendezvous radar antenna similar to that to be used by the astronauts on the Apollo 9 manned space flight set for launch Feb. 28. The astronauts will use the rendezvous radar system to enable them to link the lunar and command modules together during the 10-day earth orbit. The system, built by RCA for the Grumman Aircraft Engineering Corp., prime contractor for the lunar module, will also be used for the Apollo shot that is expected to land men on the moon by the end of the year. A Major Boost Due For Conservationists

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Conservationists will get a major boost this week in their campaign to block construction of dams and reservoirs along the white-water section of the upper Hudson River.

Republican Bernard C. Smith, chairman of the Senate Conservation Committee, says he will submit within a few days a "wild-rivers" bill to prevent impoundment of the Hudson's waters near the heart of the Adirondack Park.

The Division of Water Resources of the State Conservation Department has designated 18 sites in Eastern New York as potentially suitable for reservoirs.

The one described by the department as having the best potential for water storage is the Gooley No. 1 site, near the confluence of the Hudson and Indian rivers.

Conservationists and others charge that a dam and reservoir there would destroy "30 miles of the most wonderful section of the Hudson River" in addition to 16,000 acres of unspoiled forest, lake and mountain country.

It is the same area through which the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy led a canoe party in 1967 in his bid to spur wild-rivers legislation.

If the dam were built, it would provide water that New York City and other cities along the lower Hudson say is needed to meet their long-range needs.

Smith, a Republican from Northport, on Long Island, said this weekend that he is "adamantly opposed to any impoundment" of the upper Hudson's waters.

Therefore, he told a reporter, he will seek legislation to preclude such action in the Forest Preserve, or roughly north from Lake Luzerne.

The State Constitution specifies that land in the preserve "shall be forever kept as wild forest lands." It also says, however, that the legislature may provide for the use of three per cent of such lands for reservoirs for municipal water supplies and canals.

As outlined by the Conservation Department, about 14,500 acres of land would be covered with water and an area adjacent to the proposed dam developed for recreation.

Opponents of the Gooley project, to cost about $60 million, claim that the recreation site would have virtually no value, since, they say, the water level would fluctuate between 50 and 80 feet and thus leave enormous mud flats.

Smith, who has a camp in Newcomb, about 10 miles north of the Gooley site, said the details of his bill would be available in about a week.

He added that he would "carry this fight hard" in his house.

A companion measure will be offered in the Assembly, he said, but he declined to disclose who would sponsor it there.

The conservation interests claim that New York City could meet its water needs by desalination of ocean water, tapping subsurface water or eventually buying water from Canada.

Smith says the "real focus" should be on using subterranean water.

Stand on Their Own Goal

Saigon to Get 300 More Modern Copters

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States will give South Vietnam about 300 modern helicopters as part of a plan to prepare Saigon's army and air force to stand on their own when the American military role is reduced and ultimately ended.

Sources said equipping the South Vietnamese with about 17 squadrons of helicopters, most of them transports but some armed ships, will start soon and take a couple of years.

The United States also will train more Vietnamese to fly and maintain the choppers.

The decision to provide the helicopters was made by the Johnson administration, but it is expected to be carried forward by President Nixon.

Many details are being kept secret, but the Armed Forces Journal said a total of $98 million for the project is included in the 1969 supplemental budget and the 1970 defense budget.

Currently, there are more than 3,000 American helicopters in Vietnam, many used to carry South Vietnamese soldiers into battle areas inaccessible by ground.

Some American officers felt that unless the United States moves to furnish the South Vietnamese with sufficient helicopters of their own, the U.S. departure would mean Saigon's troops would be unable to range much beyond the roads.

This, U.S. officers contended, would mean that control of the countryside would fall virtually uncontested to the Viet Cong.

The South Vietnamese air-force, which operates that country's helicopters, now has four squadrons totaling about 75 older-model H34 machines.

The South Vietnamese will now get the UH1, nicknamed the "Huey," a machine which came into its own in the Vietnam war.

Provision of new helicopters is part of an extensive U.S. effort to modernize Vietnamese arms and equipment so the war can be "de-Americanized."

This brunt of much of the fighting effort is costing between $300 million and $400 million a year, get the M16.

Already accomplished is the rearming of the more than 155 nishing South Vietnamese forces infantry battalions of the regular South Vietnamese forces with better machineguns, mortars, grenades-launchers, radios and with lightweight, high-velocity trucks.

The militia, which bears the brunt of much of the fighting effort is costing between $300 million and $400 million a year, get the M16.

The United States also is "urging" South Vietnamese forces to better machineguns, mortars, grenades-launchers, radios and with lightweight, high-velocity trucks.

Auction Saves Buffalo Ghetto Church, School

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) —

A tough young Roman Catholic priest has raised about $25,000 through an auction, to keep his slum area parish alive for a few more months.

The Rev. William Donohue organized the two-day auction to raise part of the $50,000 needed to keep Sacred Heart Church and School open for another year.

Sacred Heart is located in the black ghetto. Its parishioners are poor and most of the 220 pupils in the school are non-Catholic.

The Diocese of Buffalo told Father Donohue that Sacred Heart had become too great a drain on the diocese and would be closed and merged with another parish unless it could raise $50,000 a year in self-help funds.

The 30-year-old priest, known to his congregation as "Father Bill," decided to try to raise the money. He contacted 200 people and asked them to donate their time or goods to the auction.

"It kind of mushroomed," he said. "We got more help than I dreamed was possible. People from all over gave us valuable goods to put on the block. I still can't believe it."

Twenty ponies, a billy goat and a donkey were given by Lew Bronstein, a self-proclaimed atheist. Bronstein, Buffalo's best known auctioneer, also put in two days as head donated an autographed inaugural program, U.S. Senator Edward M. Kennedy gave an autographed book, and Ed Rutkowski of the Buffalo Bills professional football team tossed in a sweater.

Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower

U.S. Senator Charles E. Goodell showed up Sunday morning, climbed up on a stuffed pink elephant and auctioned it off for $100.

Father Donohue said his parishioners were forming a janitorial company, which had bid on a $21,500 a year contract to raise more money.

Black Catholics are still a religious minority in their neighborhoods, but Sacred Heart now has about 1,000 parishioners and is growing steadily.

Father Donohue thinks his church can offer a great deal to the ghetto. He is determined that Sacred Heart will not close without a long hard fight.

Large Circular Skirts for Spring

PARIS (UPI) — The Paris spring collections are over after five fashion-packed days climaxed by Pierre Cardin's ultra-modern, ultra-feminine creations.

Cardin's line was pure fashion based on pure geometry. Gone were all the gimmicks, all the spacersuit leather and silver armor. In its place were some of the best ideas in Paris.

Cardin's first love this season was the circle. He used it for coats, dresses and evening trousers.

He made one stunning new circle skirt shape-circle, not circular-by sandwiching the body between two standing circles and pressing the edges together.

It looked particularly good on a little navy blue dress with figure clinging bodice, long narrow sleeves and tiny waistline.

The outline of the skirt was a bit like a very puffed drindl, but much neater. In profile, it gave a very slim look to the hips.

Besides the circle, Cardin liked the straight line and triangle, sometimes separately and sometimes together.

His basic little dress was a straight tube that fitted at the bustline and then dropped vertically. Sometimes it was cut in two, sometimes it was used as a basis for beautiful evening dresses covered with circular chiffon capes swirling clear to the hem of the gown.

The triangle was used for forty coats that fitted close to the body in front and swung wide at the back thanks to deep pleats at each shoulder edge that slanted sharply outwards.

Doing the Right Thing

By ELIZABETH L. POST
A Housewife Spends A Busy Morning

If you are a busy housewife, today's quiz follows you through your activities on an ordinary morning. After sending the children off to school, you go to the beauty parlor, the bank, the supermarket, and to a luncheonette to have a bite before you go home. In each situation you will meet certain problems. If you answer "yes" to eight or more questions you are welcome customer everywhere; six to eight means you should give more consideration to those around you; and below six, you should stay home.

1. Did you tip all the girls who worked on your hair and nails in the beauty parlor?
2. Did you bring something to entertain your toddler who accompanies you?
3. Did you keep your poodle on his leash while your hair was being done?
4. When you received your money at the drive-in window at the bank, before putting it away did you pull up to let the car behind you move up to the window?
5. After loading your cart at the supermarket, did you invite the lady behind you who had only two items to go ahead?
6. When you inadvertently knocked a pile of cans off the shelf, did you stop to pick them up?

8. Did you offer to move over at the lunch counter so that two friends could sit together?

9. Did you leave a 15 per cent tip even though you only had a sandwich and coffee?

10. Did you park your car carefully at all times so that other cars had room to get out?

While each answer should be "yes," some of the questions require further comment.

1. You should take roughly 20 per cent of your bill and divide that among the girls who worked on you.
2. Unless you bring books, crayons, etc. for them, toddlers can be restless and annoying to other customers.
3. Dogs should be kept on a leash no matter how gentle; some people dislike or fear them.
4. If you have a great deal of banking to do, store accounts, for instance, go inside. Leave the drive-in window for people who are in a hurry.
5. You should also see that your child puts items you do not want back where you found them.

9. If you have nothing more than a cup of coffee, you need not tip. If you order food, the minimum tip is 25 cents.

RETURN ADDRESSES NECESSARY, BUT LOCATION VARIES

Dear Mrs. Post: In your column you state: "Envelopes should have return addresses on the back flap." Section 123.2 of the Postal Manual says that the proper place for the return address is "in the upper left corner" of the address area.—Normal Krochmal

Dear Mr. Krochmal: All return addresses should be in the place you indicated WITH THE EXCEPTION OF ENGRAVED ADDRESSES. It would be extremely difficult to engrave through two or three thicknesses of envelope. Therefore, for very formal invitations it must be done on the back flap.

Accent Unique Entree

The elegance of simple French cooking and the exotic California canned ripe olive make a fish dish par excellence. That certain flair of the French is often achieved with the addition of a special ingredient, such as a truffle. From California comes the perfect truffle substitute — canned California ripe olives. These nut-like flavor-some ripe olives add the magic touch with both color and appetite appeal. Tender, delicate filet of sole rolls have a stuffing of sliced ripe olives. Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise:
If you have a pair of fabric or suede shoes that have dried mud splatters or dust on them, take a piece of Heloise's nylon net. Just crumple it up and buff away.

Before you know it they will look like new again.
Barbara Linsky

Dear Heloise:
I've found when sewing that sometimes I have to rip out a lot of seams. So I took some masking tape, turned the sticky side out and stuck it together. Then I put it over my fingers and laid it on the place I had ripped out.

It pulls those tiny threads out in seconds and it sure saves me a lot of time and trouble. Try it, won't you?
Candy Burdeshaw

Dear Heloise:
Suggested idea for easy moving:
Pack paper towels, bathroom tissue, clock, transistor radio, drinking glasses, sandwiches and night lights in a box together for ready use before everything is unpacked.

And, by the way, don't forget the ASPIRIN!
A Reader

Dear Heloise:
To make use of old, or cracked creamer and sugar sets, I plant an African Violet or a small vine in them. These make good conversation pieces or unusual gifts.
Mrs. R. Fowler

Dear Heloise:
I broil our steaks on my wife's pure aluminum cake rack. Before putting it under the broiler, I always lay slices of bread under the rack.

The bread absorbs the good juices which drip down and bakes itself into a delicate golden brown by the time the steak is completely done.

If one wished, after removing the steaks from the rack, they could toast the bread a little bit more. But we find it unnecessary.

Not only does this make a luscious tidbit to go along with our steak, but the cookie sheet we put the rack in, is easier to clean. The grease doesn't burn either!
Charlie Steinmetz

Dear Heloise:
I like to make fancy cutout cookies for my grandchildren but always had trouble transferring them to the baking sheet — especially the legs on animal cookies.

I thought up an idea one day that solved my problem. I made my cookie dough and rolled it out right on the COOKIE SHEET. Then cut out the cookies right THERE... on the sheet!

With a sharp knife, I cut away the excess dough and baked the cookies. They turned out absolutely perfect.

If the recipe calls for a greased pan, you can grease and flour it before rolling the dough.
Mrs. W. E. Bean

Fantabulous! I have to admit you're one smart cookie!

Steady Progress in Plans for State Parks

LAURENCE ROCKEFELLER

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN
Malden-on-Hudson — The preparation of plans for Bristol Beach State Park in the Town of Saugerties is steadily progressing and there is still some preliminary work to accomplish.

This was a progress report on the proposed state park announced this week by Laurence S. Rockefeller, vice president of Palisades Interstate Park Commission.

Rockefeller said the next phase to be completed is a survey of a proposed land acquisition which is scheduled for completion within three months.

He noted it is not possible to predict the timing on subsequent steps.

The Rockefeller report was in answer to an inquiry by Michael J. Perry Jr., chairman of Ulster County Recreation and Parks Commission. The project covering 121 acres including a 22 acre natural beach on the Hudson River waterfront at Malden-on-Hudson, was first announced in April 1964. Since that time progress has been slow.

Many Inquiries

Perry said he has had many inquiries pertaining to the proposed state park and contacted Rockefeller on the status of the project.

It had been reported at the time the property was donated by Terry Staples of Malden-on-Hudson, that the State Conservation Department had been allocated in excess of $2 million for the recreation facility.

The proposed state park project was initiated by former Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson, R-Woodstock; former State Sen. E. Ogden Bush, R-Delancey, and former Saugerties Supervisor Peter M. Williams.

In September 1964 the state public referendum in November purchased access lands on 1966.

Route 9W for the construction of a road to the site. The purchase agreement would provide a wide apron entrance and land to construct a two-lane access road from Route 9W at Hudson River. In view of Governor Rockefeller's $1.7 billion water pollution abatement program, as well as the long range plans now being made by the Hudson River Valley Commission for the beautification of the river shoreline, this facility will have a great impact on the future development of the Hudson Valley.

In April 1966 former Assemblyman Wilson reported that aerial photographs had been taken of the site and these will be used to prepare the general plans for the facility.

Funds for the project were expected to come from the $200 million bond issue approved by the public referendum in November 1966.

The former assemblyman said as Bristol and was so noted on the Bristol Recreation Area, old maps of the area.

When completed will provide an important recreational development along this section of the Hudson River. In view of Governor Rockefeller's $1.7 billion water pollution abatement program, as well as the long range plans now being made by the Hudson River Valley Commission for the beautification of the river shoreline, this facility will have a great impact on the future development of the Hudson Valley.

The name, Bristol, is probably two centuries old. A portion of Malden was once known

A Prime Project

When the County Recreation and Parks Commission was formed last year by the County Legislature, one of its prime projects was to push for early completion of the two state parks proposed in the county.

The other is the 500-acre Wittenberg State Park in the Town of Woodstock. The latter has been progressing more rapidly. A $168,285 contract for site work and paving has already been awarded and the project is underway at Wittenberg.

Area Rural Pilot Plan In Action

The Ulster County Committee of the Mid-Hudson Rural Development Project will hear reports of strides made since last month at a meeting tonight at 8 o'clock at the Marbletown Elementary School cafeteria, Stone Ridge.

Details of promotion, public relations and fact finding will be given. Reports will be given also on a recent meeting with Judd Hudson of the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Five areas of concern have been defined by the local pilot project committee—housing, recreation, transportation, health and education.

Action has been taken in the area of housing. Findings of a recent meeting on housing problems of western Ulster County will be detailed tonight. The rural development concern with housing focuses on the rural, low and moderate income and the senior citizen.

Projects Under Study

Two short range projects are under study by the local committee. One is the organization of a non-profit cooperative to build a television tower to serve families in the Boiceville area. The other is to start a Junior Achievement Inc. in Ulster County to give high school students instruction in business procedures such as incorporation, stock sales, manufacturing bookkeeping and the like.

Studies are being made on the need for housing of 180 low income families in the Ellenville area. Harley F. Taylor, a member of the development committee, has suggested a project through a non-profit body to provide the needed housing. He will present the proposal at a future meeting.

Effort Underway

Keith Johnson of Shandaken has noted a fact finding effort is underway in the Onteora area. A questionnaire survey on needs and opportunities in the area has been sent home with school children to be completed by parents and returned.

Committees have been set up to carry out promotion, public relations and fact finding.

John R. Parete of Stone Ridge serves as chairman of the Ulster County Development Committee with Paul H. Boucher of Ellenville as vice chairman. Brian S. Heintzelman of the Farmers Home Administration Kingston office serves as program leader and acting secretary of the program.

The Mid-Hudson area is serving as experiment site of the rural development project under order of the United States Department of Agriculture. Results of the development here will determine its use in other sections of the country.

Heart Disease, Smoking Linked

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — There is a significant relationship between hardening of the aorta—the largest artery in the body—and cigarette smoking, a Roswell Park Memorial Institute report shows.

In its report issued Monday the cancer research center said that an eight-year study based on more than 1,000 autopsies and material gathered from all patients at the institute about lifetime usage of tobacco and alcohol showed a "biologically significant relationship."

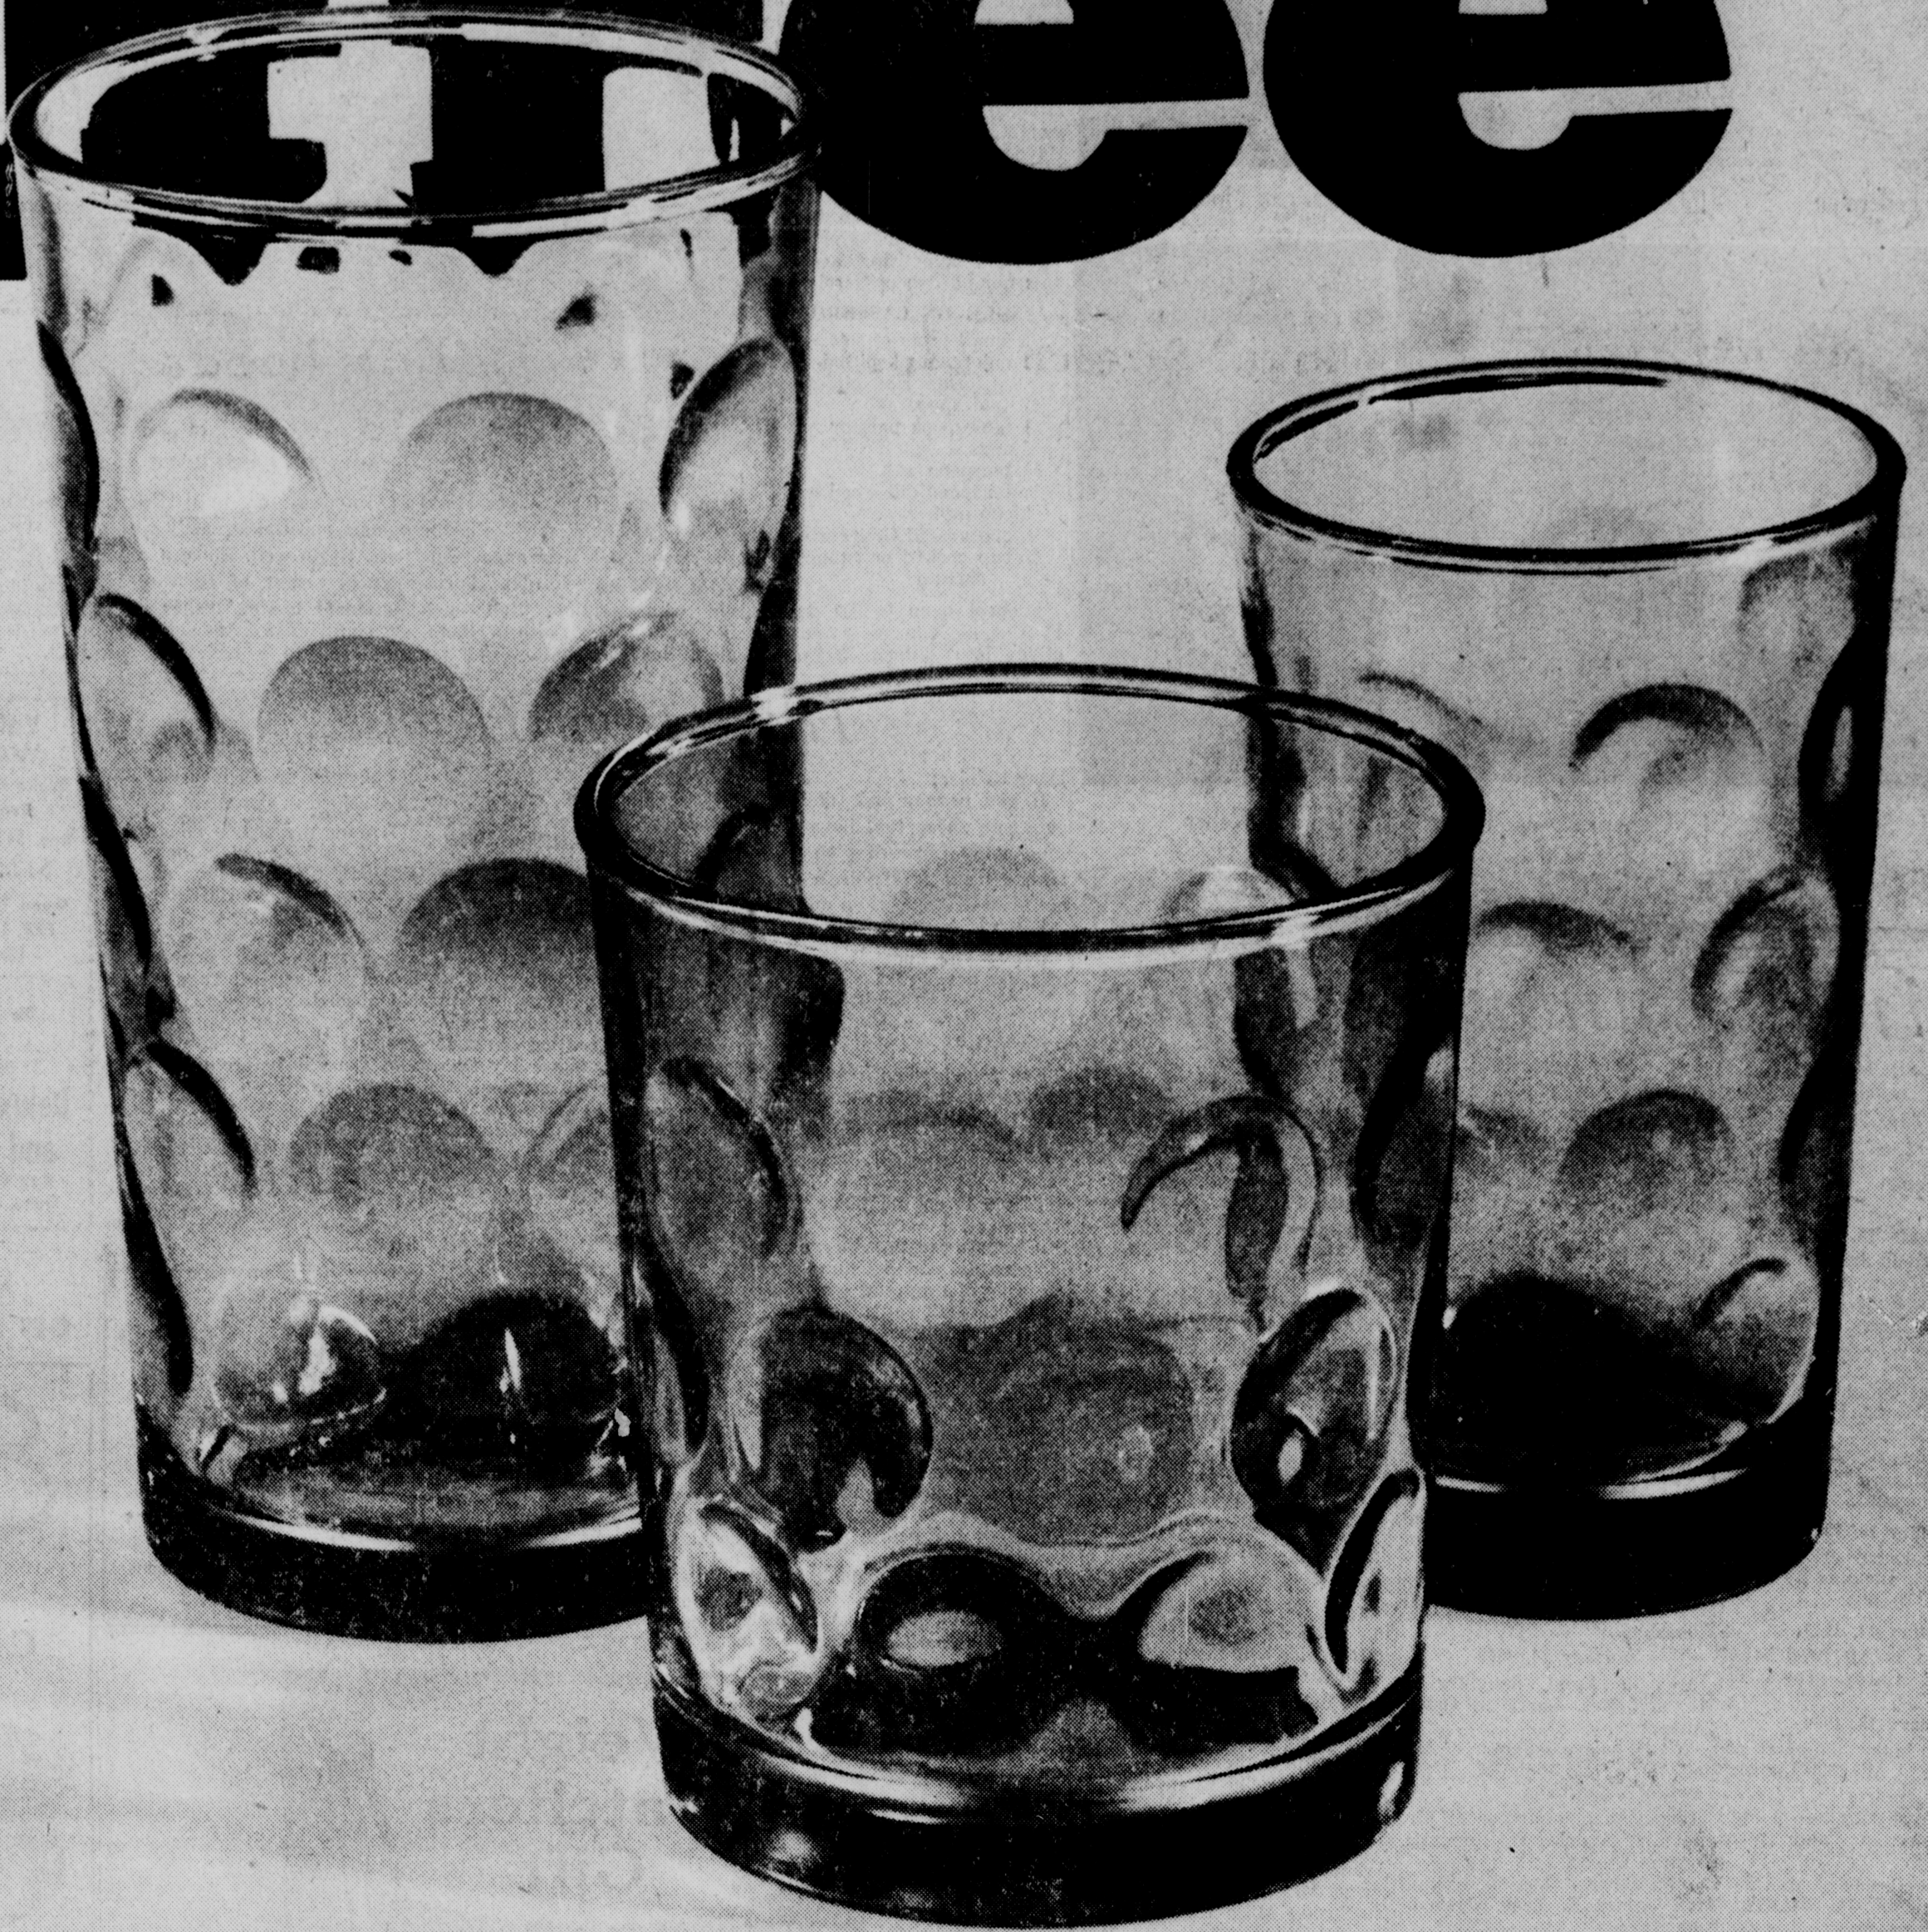

The report pointed directly at cigarette smoking as being linked to aortic atherosclerosis, a disease in which deposits of fatty material lead to scarring and calcification of the aorta. The blocking effect of the deposits causes reduced blood circulation.

The report said pipe and cigar smoking did not leave traces of the fatty tissue and alcohol intake had only a negligible effect.

Mathis Batters Chuvalo; Gets Jerry Quarry Next

By WILLIAM VERIGAN

UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI)—There will be no rest for the victors—Buster Mathis and Emile Griffith—despite their lopsided decisions Monday night in Madison Square Garden.

Mathis turned George Chuvalo's face into a bloody pulp to take a 12-round heavyweight verdict and earn a bout in the Garden with Jerry Quarry on March 10.

Griffith, the former welterweight and middleweight champ who was celebrating his 31st birthday, overcame a sluggish start to win a 10-round decision over Andy Heilman, a game, but outgunned substitute for injured Doyle Baird. Griffith goes back in action in the Garden on Feb. 24, trying to avenge a loss to Stanley "Kitten" Hayward.

Although Mathis, a 232-pound giant, tortured Chuvalo by opening five deep cuts, the game loser from Canada refused to quit or go down. Chuvalo went to the canvas in the fourth and fifth rounds, but both were ruled slips by referee Harold Valan.

The 25-year-old Mathis seemed determined to score a knockout after Chuvalo hit him low in the first round. He pushed Valan aside twice, charged after Chuvalo and yelled "Come and fight."

The best rounds for the Canadian were in the sixth and seventh when Mathis' nose began bleeding and in the 11th when he desperately tried for a knockout as blood streamed down his face.

"If I ever got cut up like that, I have to say that I'd quit," said Mathis about the 208-pound Canadian. "It was awful. After he started bleeding, I have to confess that I was trying to blind him because he is a heavyweight and he was getting in those left hooks, even in the last round."

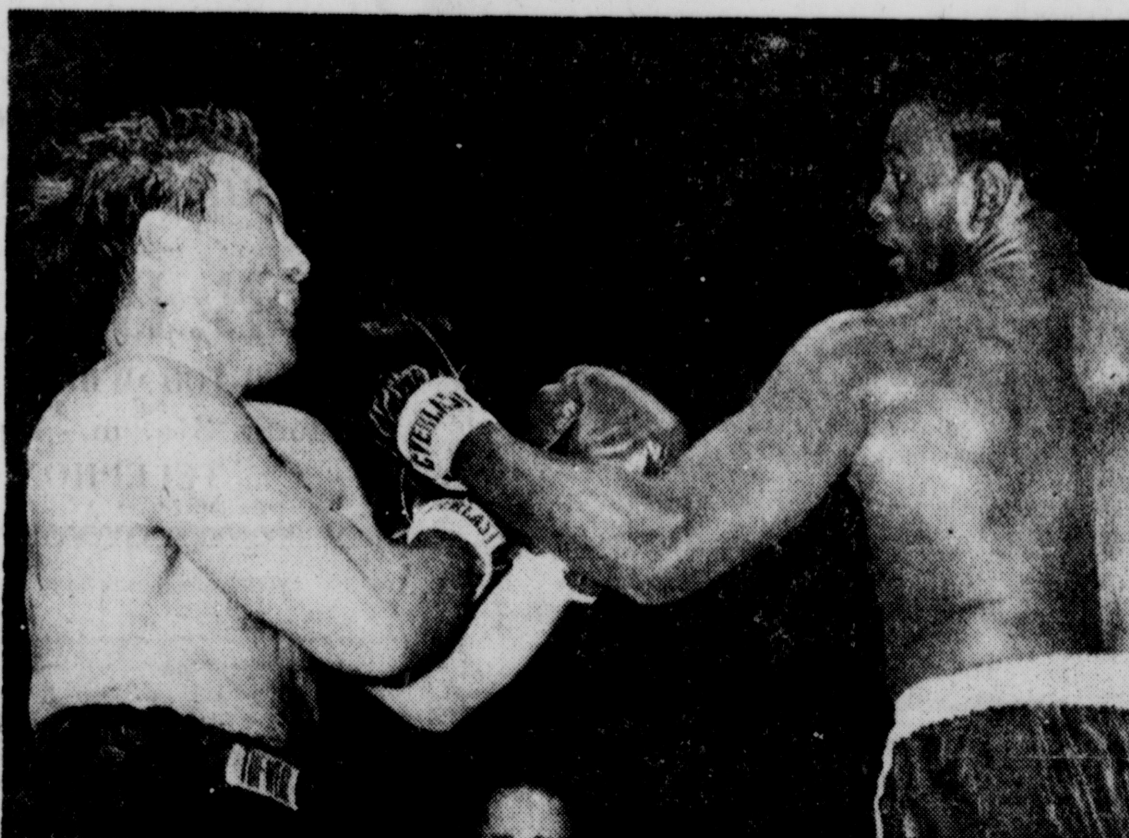

However, Mathis said he expects a tougher fight from Quarry. "He's smarter and quicker than Chuvalo," said Mathis.

Chuvalo probably realizes that he never again will be a serious contender, but he refused to say that he was thinking of retiring. The winner of the Mathis-Quarry bout probably will go on to a title fight. Mathis has a 29-1 record, the only loss being to five-state champion Joe Frazier, while Chuvalo now has a 53-15-2 mark.

Griffith, who weighed 156 1/4 pounds compared to 161 for Heilman, shook his west coast opponent in the first round but was unable to follow up any of the opportunities he had.

Gil Clancy, Griffith's manager, continually hollered instructions and berated his fighter as Griffith faltered badly in the third and fourth rounds. In the fifth round, a cut was opened beside Griffith's left eye by Heilman's thumb, but it didn't cause him any trouble. Finally, Griffith, now 58-10, snapped into action and took control of the bout after Clancy slapped him in the face before the sixth round and shouted "You should be ashamed of yourself. Take this guy apart."

The scoring was one sided in both fights. Griffith got the decision 8-2 on the card of referee Jimmy Devlin and one judge while the other judge had it 7-3. Mathis won 10-2 on Valan's card and was 9-3 and 8-1 on the judges' cards.

Strike and Boycott Imperils Baseball

By HAL BOCK

Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The

Baseball Players Association is tightening the screws in its continuing battle over pensions with the club owners and the spectre of a major league strike looms larger and larger.

First, the Players Association urged its members not to sign their 1969 contracts until the dispute was settled. Then, on Monday, the Association announced plans to boycott spring training unless the pension question is resolved.

Faced with the possibility of unsigned contracts and spring training camps populated only by minor leaguers, the owners could console themselves with the fact that should a strike come, it won't include pickets around their ball parks.

"No, I don't think pickets would be necessary," said Marvin Miller, executive director of the Players Association. "I don't think players can be replaced if they walk out."

Miller presided over a four-hour meeting attended by some 125 players Monday. At the conclusion of the session, the players issued a resolution supporting their negotiators and saying they would not sign contracts or report to camp until "the negotiations are satisfactorily concluded."

Among the players at the meeting were World Series stars Bob Gibson and Mickey Lolich as well as Brooks Robinson, Ernie Banks, Jim Bunning, Maury Wills, Joe Torre and Rusty Staub.

The decision to boycott the training camps came just 10 days before the Chicago White Sox are scheduled to open the major's first camp site and less than one month before the traditional March 1 opening date.

Some players have indicated that they would pay their own way to their club's training sites and work out on their own should the pension dispute drag on. But Miller said the Players Association was taking a stand against such individual action.

"We've told them," Miller said, "that it would not be wise to put out their own expenses, and we don't want to appear eager."

Miller said that most players have followed the Association's recommendation that they not sign their contracts.

"There are very, very few established players who have signed," he said. "A conservative estimate would be that 90 per cent have not signed, and the figure probably would be higher."

Many clubs claim to have signed contracts on hand but say they have agreed not to release the names of the players who have signed until the dispute with the Players Association is settled.

Miller explained that at the center of the dispute are the players' rights to radio and television revenue. The Players Association contends the owners want to shut the pension plan off from broadcast income "even though the two matters have been directly tied for the last 22 years."

The owners have offered to increase their total yearly contribution to the fund by $1 million, boosting it to $5.1 million annually.

The current plan provides a top of $643 per month at age 65 for a player in the majors five years and $1,288 per month at age 65 for a 10-year player.

Vince Quits Packers For Piece of Skins

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Vince Lombardi, eager for a taste of ownership in a pro football club, said Monday he is quitting the Green Bay Packers to apply his fabled coaching spurs to the sluggish Washington Redskins.

Officials of the two National Football League clubs withheld immediate confirmation that the Packer general manager was becoming executive vice president and chief coach of the Redskins, and that he would get ownership of a portion of the club.

While the Packers' executive board was scheduling another meeting today to review Lombardi's announcement, reports circulated in Washington that he would get at least five per cent of the Redskins' stock.

That would help satisfy an ambition by the NFL's most spectacular coach to own a part of the organization he directs, a role deprived him under Green Bay's Community ownership arrangements.

Redskins' President Edward Bennett Williams holds five per cent of his club's stock. The majority is held by long-time owner George Marshall, and is administered under a court trust by Williams.

Lombardi, who had often said being Green Bay coach and general manager simultaneously was too time consuming, was hesitant Monday to speculate on the future of Otto Graham, Washington's coach and general manager.

"I haven't the slightest idea about Otto," Lombardi said. Redskins official withheld formal comment while the Packers discussed whether to free Lombardi from a contract that didn't have an expiration date until 1974.

"This is not an ordinary matter," said Dominic Olejniczak, president of Green Bay Packers Inc. "After all, there is only one Lombardi."

Lombardi said there was "no ill feeling" between him and Green Bay influencing his decision to abandon the club after 10 years as general manager and nine as coach, during which he piloted the team to an unprecedented five NFL championships in only seven years.

"It's been a great 10 years," he said, but adding: "Like anyone else, you always hope to own something."

The Packers are a non-profit organization in which no one gets ownership.

Lombardi said there had been no discussion with Green Bay as to his successor as general manager. "I've asked for my release from the Green Bay Packers," he said. "There's always a possibility a snag could develop."

On the other hand, he said after Monday's meeting with Packers executives, "Everything is fine. There's no problem with the board. I've just got a contract."

The contract with Green Bay, unless waived, barred him from coaching another club during the pact's lifetime.

Washington, which hasn't had a winning team since 1955, is in a situation that could tempt a coach with the Lombardi temperament for winning.

"The challenge is not in maintaining, but in creating," he said.

One of his best-known expressions: "Winning isn't everything; it's the only thing."

Green Bay was a giant on the pro football circuit in the 1920s, and again in the 1930s. Lombardi arrived at the Lake Michigan port in 1959 after the Packers finished a 1-10-1 season.

They would never have another season that bad—until the 1968-69 season, after Lombardi turned over the coaching task to Phil Bengtson, an assistant who helped him develop Green Bay's defensive reputation.

As the Packers dropped to a 6-7-1 season, rumors broke out that he was being offered jobs with other clubs—Philadelphia, New Orleans, Boston, Atlanta.

The former member of Fordham's storied Seven Blocks of Granite acknowledged he might like to return to the East, and there was talk he was negotiating with a former employer, the New York Giants.

He often said he wouldn't leave Green Bay during a losing season. Yet, he said, he would have to consider any good offer. In his absence, the Packers had 1-10-1 record last season. The glory of the last decade: five NFL titles, two consecutive Super Bowl crowns.

MAN ON THE MOVE — Vince Lombardi, general manager of the Green Bay Packers, made it official yesterday. He has asked for his release from the Packers to become chief executive officer, head coach and part owner of the Washington Redskins. He is shown leaving Green Bay office. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

The Lombardi period became the ground, and no Washington Green Bay's Golden Era under his policies of a hard running attack coupled with a keen passing game, to which he assigned ace quarterback Bart Starr as the chief engineer.

The Redskins finished the 1968 season with a 5-9 record. They scored 249 points and allowed opponents 358.

Washington is crying for a good organization," he said. Lombardi-style running game. The Capital Division club averaged only 83.1 yards a game on the ground, and no Washington running back was listed among the loop's top 15. Quarterback Sonny Jurgensen gave Washington a better looking passing game. His team averaged 177.5 yards in the air.

The Packers, Lombardi said, "will be in fine shape" in the future.

"They've got a good coach, a good organization," he said. "The Packers will be around a long time after Vince Lombardi is gone."

Wildcats Seeking Rare SEC Repeat

By United Press International

It's been a decade since Kentucky won two consecutive Southeastern Conference basketball championships but it appears that there will be no stopping the Wildcats this season.

The Wildcats, who last won two straight SEC crowns in 1957 and 1958, raised their league record to 9-0 Monday night when they whipped Auburn 105-93 at Lexington, Ky. The nationally fourth-ranked Wildcats are now 15-2 overall for the season.

Kentucky had no better than a 66-66 tie with 11:27 left in Monday night's game but six straight points by Mike Pratt, 6-foot, 4-inch, 217-pound front court strong man, scored six straight points and Auburn never was close thereafter.

Dan Issel, 6-8 center, scored 36 points and Pratt finished with 22 for Kentucky while John Mengelt tallied 42 for Auburn which is 4-6 in SEC competition.

Unbeaten Santa Clara defeated San Francisco State 72-59 for its 18th straight victory but only after trailing at halftime for the first time this season. The third-ranked Broncos were behind 39-34 at the half but forged ahead on four points by Dennis Awtry and two by Ralph Ogden and never were headed.

Awtry scored 23 point and had 16 rebounds and Ogden scored 20 points for Santa Clara. Joe Callaghan, who fouled out with 10 minutes left, led San Francisco State with 21 points.

Kansas, No. 13 nationally, defeated Oklahoma State 64-48. 16th-ranked Duquesne downed Fairfield 85-75 and 20th-ranked Colorado edged out Missouri 80-79 in other games involving the top 20.

Dave Robisch led Kansas with 23 points, including eight in a row that beat off an Oklahoma State rally midway in the second half. Sparky Grober scored 17 for Oklahoma State which trailed 29-18 at halftime.

Duquesne won its 13th victory in 15 games with the help of four consecutive free throws by Garry Nelson and Gary Major late in the second half at New Haven, Conn. Jarrett Durham scored 24 points for Duquesne which won the game with 721 shooting from the foul line. Jim Broun had 23 for Fairfield.

Gordon Topp's six points in overtime enabled Colorado to raise its Big Eight record to 5-1 and dropped Missouri to 2-4. Topp led the scorers with 31 points and Don Tomlinson had 23 for Missouri.

Mike Hauer's layup with one second remaining in overtime gave St. Joseph's of Philadelphia a 69-68 decision over Northern Illinois; Pete Maravich scored 33 points in Louisiana State's 95-71 triumph over Mississippi State. DePaul beat Niagara 83-74 despite 33 points by Calvin Murphy and Bob Lanier's 26 points led St. Bonaventure over Xavier 71-69 in other games.

St. Mary's of Hudson won over St. Joseph's of Kingston, 56-54, at St. Joseph's school gym Sunday.

St. Joseph's won the JV game, 23-20.

Jay Carroll was high scorer for the day with 27 points for St. Joseph's and John Dolan took high honors for St. Mary's with 16 points.

In the Small Fry I Division St. Joseph's won, 45-35, and in Small Fry II Division St. Mary's won, 25-18.

John Glynn had 13 points for St. Joseph's and John Marsh hit 11 points for St. Mary's.

The score: St. Joseph's Varsity (44)—Carroll 27, Turner 2, Terlinger 6, Krayewski 2, Howard 2, Geuss 5.

St. Mary's (Hudson) Varsity (36)—Howe 7, O'Brien 7, Dolan 16, Hester 8, Notozney 12, Witko 6.

SOUTHPORT, England (UPI)—Karen Hardiker, 10, was the best winger in the local church soccer team. She could dodge, feint, tackle, leap for a header, shoot hard and return with zest the odd kick on the shins.

Now Karen has been banned from the team. The English Schools Football Association discovered it isn't allowed to let girls play soccer with boys. Said Karen:

league play, having lost only to Ulster.

Perry's "new lineup" will be built around Garry Kirkwood, Jerry Moss and Ray Lindhorst, with Mike Derrenbacher getting the fourth slot and the fifth going to Ed Torroni or Larry Trippodo.

Ulster downed Orange 96-58 in their first meeting and routed Dutchess 122-91.

"We are not holding Orange or Dutchess cheaply," said Perry. "Orange is capable of beating any team in the conference on a given night."

For the first time since the season opened, UCCC is not represented on the Top Ten scoring list which is headed by Post Junior's brilliant Ed Hill with a 31.8 average he fattened with 42 points against Ulster last Saturday. Tom Royce of Dutchess ranks fifth with a 24-point average.

Jerry Moss, UCCC's highest scorer, makes the assist leaders with a second place tie behind Marvin Rippey of Fashion Institute Tech who leads with 7.7 to Moss' 7.5 average per game.

Post Junior rolled over five straight opponents, scoring 100 points or more each time, since the last ratings.

Individual highlights recently include Ed Fields of Suffolk hauling down 29 rebounds against Rockland for a new school record. Al Jones of Fashion potted 35 against Farmingdale (L. I. Aggies) and Ed McGinley of the Aggies firing 37 points against Kingsborough.

Farmingdale has scored more than 100 points seven times this year. Steve Washington pumped in 30 points and pulled down 17 rebounds for Westchester against Farmingdale.

TIANO'S TOPICS

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Freeman Sports Editor

Realignment is the order of the day in the professional sports world of baseball, basketball and football.

The winds of dissent and the yearning for change also hovers over the area scholastic sports world—but nobody is listening.

The Dutchess County Scholastic League (DCSL) brass is in session as you read this, Kingston High has re-submitted its application for admission to the Dutchess circuit, but nobody around the Kate Walton Bush says there are no applications on hand. Strictly routine business.

The UCAL (Ulster County Athletic League) goes into executive session Wednesday, but the word realignment will not be heard. Secretary Jim McIntyre of Pine Bush says there are no applications on hand. Strictly routine business.

The UCAL quietly rejected applications from Ellenville and John A. Coleman High of Kingston in a December mail vote.

THERE ARE THOSE in the UCAL, who would like to welcome Saugerties High back into the fold—but there are more who want no part of the northern Ulster school. There are men in Saugerties who want the Sawyers to quit the DCSL, although our information says there is no unanimity on the subject up in the village.

If Saugerties were to return to its original home base—the UCAL—a spot would be open for Kingston High. It is known that Cardinal Farley of Rhinebeck is leaving the DCSL but that opening is slated to go to John Jay High school, a new school carved out of the huge Wappingers central district.

THE UCAL MANDATES a unanimous vote for acceptance of new teams. Each school has two votes—the superintendent and athletic director or designated representative. That's 14 votes and it takes only one vote to reject an applicant. Narrow provincialism or the fear of a bigger school makes it difficult to gain admission to the UCAL. The system amounts to practically a black ball system.

While the DCSL brass is again rejecting or postponing action on the Kingston application (for further study), it is re-assuring that there is some public interest and support for a realignment of the mid-Hudson leagues in Dutchess county.

W. Wendall Heilman, a Poughkeepsie football buff, comes forward with one of the best suggestions we've seen yet. He proposes a merger of the DUSO and DCSL leagues into two six-team divisions to be known as the Eastern and Western sections.

Here's the Heilman breakdown:

EASTERN DIVISION	WESTERN DIVISION
Arlington	Beacon
John Jay	Kingston
Ketchikan	Middletown
Lourdes	Newburgh
Poughkeepsie	Port Jervis
Roosevelt	Saugerties

Earl the Pearl Changed From Dull to Brilliant

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Pearl was dull for most of the game but he shined in the third quarter—and so did the Baltimore Bullets.

Earl "The Pearl" Monroe scored only a total of three points in the first, second and fourth quarters Monday night but he threw in 12 in the third to spark a game-breaking rally as the Bullets defeated Chicago 132-122.

In the third period, the Bullets who increased their lead over idle Philadelphia to 2½ games in the National Basketball Association's Eastern Division, outscored Chicago 20-8 to open up an insurmountable 100-87 lead.

Kevin Loughery led Baltimore with 35 points. Bob Boozer topped Chicago with 27.

In the only other NBA game, Bob Rule's 38-point output powered the Seattle SuperSonics to a 114-107 success over the Los Angeles Lakers. The victory was the Sonics' first over the Lakers this season in four meetings.

Seattle broke the game open early in the fourth quarter, forging ahead 95-86 after Los Angeles entered the period in front 81-78.

Rule was benched with 3:08 left when he incurred his fifth foul.

Kingston High, struggling through a difficult 6-5 loss, suffered another serious setback today with the announcement that injury-plagued Gene Bruno has mononucleosis and will be lost for the remainder of the season.

Kingston hosts Arlington Central of the DCSL tonight and it is not a happy occasion for either the Maroons or the student body. The death of football star Mike Hoffman Monday casts a shadow over the proceedings.

Bruno, who was averaging 17.9 points, and was the best rebounder on the squad, has been hit with an incredible string of injuries and illnesses since the Christmas recess.

First he suffered the loss of some teeth in a scrimmage session at Rondout Valley, then he was hobbled with an ankle injury.

Independent action is the order of the day for the remainder of the abbreviated basketball slate tonight.

OCS Hosts Ellenville
Onteora Central's UCAL championship bound Indians host Ellenville of the DUSO Village League in a return meeting; New Paltz travels to Red Hook; Saugerties is at Catskill and Rhinebeck hosts St. Mary's of Hudson.

Kingston trounced Arlington, which is 1-7, in the DCSL, 82 to 61 in their first meeting in Dutchess.

With Bruno no longer available, Coach Gilligan is expected to use Ken Gilligan, Ted Wood, Werner Kolln, Greg Rios and either Jon Yaple or Vince Gorman for the fifth slot.

Onteora, rolling along at a 9-0 clip and with the UCAL virtually assured, cannot hold Ellenville too lightly. The Ellies are 3-2 in the DUSO league and boast a fine scorer in Don Mansell.

Coach Rod Patrick's Indians beat Ellenville 74-67 in the first meeting on the Ellie boards and are not likely to relax tonight.

They have just come off two victories over Rondout Valley and Marlboro and are pointing for nothing less than 12-0 UCAL record.

Marlboro Is Key
The reminder of the OCS slate shows road games at Wallkill and Highland and a home date with New Paltz on Feb. 20.

Rondout, trailing OCS by two games in the loss column, has four league contests remaining, at Catskill.

with New Paltz and Pine Bush at home and Marlboro and Highland away.

The Feb. 14 date at Marlboro while OCS is playing Wallkill could settle the issue.

New Paltz, 5-4 in the UCAL, can expect big trouble at Red Hook, where the Raiders have won 15 straight in DCSL competition and are the only team to beat Onteora this season.

Coach John P. (Buddy) Smith, heartened by the improved showing of the Sawyers, despite their 1-8 DCSL rating, is confident about the outcome at Catskill.

Brian Bach Is Drafted by Cards

Brian Bach, former Kingston High School pitching star, now attending University of Connecticut, was drafted by the St. Louis Cardinals in the major league draft last weekend in New York City.

It was the second time the National League champions had drafted Bach in the past two years, but his time it is firm and final. He is now the property of the Redbirds under baseball law, if they can agree on terms when Bach graduates.

Bach is now in his junior year at University of Connecticut and a pitcher on the varsity baseball team.

Rated one of the best mounds-

men in Kingston High history, Bach, a strong-throwing right hander, was first drafted while still at Kingston High. The then Milwaukee Braves drafted Bach but were unable to reach agreement on terms.

The Cardinals made their first pitch for Bach in 1968 but again there was no agreement on contract terms, bonus, etc.

Under baseball law, the Cardinals needed Bach's permission to claim him in the 1969 draft of college and high school baseball players in the nation. They could not negotiate with him as a freshman.

Bach agreed to allow the Cardinals to draft him and terms and assignment, of course, will be worked out following his graduation in June of 1970.

His father, John Bach of Kingston, who is widely known in baseball circles, was extremely happy with weekend developments.

"We knew Brian was going to be drafted by the Cardinals and we're very happy about it," he said. "The Cards have a fine organization and I'm sure they'll make Brian a good offer."

After a good sophomore season at UConn, Bach pitched in the fast Cape Cod League last summer.

Babe Ruth League of Kingston has elected Harry Lyons of Port Ewen as its 19th president.

Dear Abby

Prayers Well Answered

By Abigail Van Buren
(© 1969 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I've been reading your column for a long time and have finally concluded that nobody has a problem like mine.

Almost every evening after dinner Ralph and I watch TV together, then Ralph cuddles up in his easy chair, falls asleep and starts to snore with all the lights blazing in his face. There is nothing else for me to do except go to bed.

When Ralph finally wakes up and discovers that I have gone to bed without him (about 2 a.m.) he becomes very angry. I've tried to let him know before he falls asleep that I'm going to bed, but he doesn't even hear me.

We're not a couple of old fogies, Abby. I am 26 and he is 28 and we've only been married for 2 years. And I'd like to add that before we got married I wasn't sure I'd be enough "woman" for him, and I actually used to pray to the good Lord to give me the strength to keep up with him. What happened?

DEAR PUZZLED: Either the honeymoon has ended, or your prayers were too well answered.

DEAR ABBY: What would you do if you had a very wealthy aunt who had a fortune in jewels and claimed she had been robbed of nearly everything, collected the insurance and then kept showing up wearing this piece of jewelry and that — which were supposed to have been stolen?

I mentioned this to my husband, and he said I should mind my own business. What do you think?

NO NAME, NO LOCATION
DEAR NO NAME: I would mention to my aunt that she should call her insurance agent and tell him she didn't lose as much as she thought she lost. And if she doesn't come clean your aunt stands to lose a lot more.

DEAR ABBY: Re: your advice to ORANGEBURG, S. C. — that it's all right to "hint" after her date pay, her sister. After she "hints" him into paying her sister, she can "hint" him into paying her rent. (She says he's not stingy.) Then maybe she can "hint" him into buying her a car.

Abby, I don't think it's necessary to instruct the little broad in the finest points of the Oldest Profession, but, Baby, you're doing well.

B. C. IN DALLAS
DEAR B. C.: You view the situation from an entirely different angle, and I must admit, you have a point. But the Oldest Profession is rapidly becoming the poorest. Too much amateur competition.

DEAR ABBY: I thank you for the wise way in which you answered that woman who was so provoked with her husband because she was expecting again when she thought her family was complete.

I had a 19-year-old son in the navy, and a 17-year-old daughter when this caboose arrived. I'm not saying I was delirious with delight but at least I accepted my fate gracefully at age 39.

When this son was 14, his dad died a tragic death. To this day I believe our son was sent to us for a reason. As you say, "There are no accidents." Bless you.

"BEEN THERE"

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069 and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Horoscope By SIDNEY OMARR

It's In The Stars

("The wise man controls his destiny . . . astrology points the way.")

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, FEB. 5, 1969

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Employment conditions fluctuate. Question of how much time is worth dominates. Diplomatic approach is best one. Some around you are envious. Sudden change might be confusing.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Agreement made with child could backfire. Means young person today goes "out of bounds." Statement made in past comes home to roost. Don't compound error. Draw line. Be mature.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Conditions at home are anything but settled. Family member may be depressed because of employment — or lack of it. You may be called upon for loan. Be fair, not foolish.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Postpone travel if practical. Confusion exists concerning purpose. Day features revision of plans. Instructions may have been garbled. Know this — have alternative method at hand.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Keep sharp eye on possessions. Something of value is lost in transit if careless. Know this — act accordingly. Relative who complains is seeking sympathy. Offer it but don't get involved.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Personality adjustment indicated. Means you change outward appearance. You may feel you have to look more conservative. Dress in manner that inspires confidence. Basic gain is indicated.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): What was secret is now publicized. Situation involving you is discussed behind scenes. Don't forget one who may be ill, confined. Show that you are big enough to forgive, forget.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You have "pulling" power.

Means many are curious enough to pay you good money. Popularity soars. But realize that you must retain individuality. Don't let others change your style.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You get boost from "unlikely source." Maintain poise. Keep guard up where reputation is concerned. Some in your organization may not be adhering to regulations.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Follow through on long-range project. Leaving details to friend could be costly. Some around you today lack ability to concentrate. Be subtle. But do some inquiring.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Mysterious actions of one close to you creates friction. Key is to seek facts, ignore rumors. Someone may have spent money without letting you know.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Legal document comes to your attention. May have been lost or hidden. Heed voice of experience. Older individual has information you require. Obtain hint from CAPRICORN message.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are vital, active, a natural reporter, writer. You love to be in the thick of current events — and to report them. Wait until next month before arriving at decision regarding important journey or relationship.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Prominent individual may be "jilted."

(To find out who's lucky for you in money and love, order Sydney Omarr's booklet, "Secret Hints for Men and Women." Send birthdate and 50 cents to Omarr Astrology Secrets, The Kingston Daily Freeman, Box 3240, Grand Central Station, New York, N.Y. 10017.)

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

NUMBER 1: (Q.) My mother all the time downgrades me. She tells me I'm hateful just because I disagree with her point of view.

She tells me how wonderful I have it. She's talking about material things. I think love is more important than money and clothes. I hope I can provide all three for my children without constantly reminding them of what I'm doing for them.

Perhaps if adults would listen we wouldn't have such a big generation gap. —A 15-Year-Old Girl in Baltimore.

(A.) If you can give your children all the love and all the material things they need, and never remind them that you're doing it, you will be a very special mother and your children will be lucky indeed.

We live in a time when new ideas come rushing at us and old ideas hang on tight as ticks. Because of this, many of us have trouble deciding what is most important. You have decided correctly about love. It's No. 1.

Keep this always in mind and try to be patient with your mother. She loves you and wants the best of everything for you. If you can avoid arguing with her it will be easier for both of you to bring your love out in the open where it belongs.

SUN-STREAKS: (Q.) I have light brown hair with red and blonde highlights. In the summer it's dark blonde. Can I use some temporary lightener in the winter that will not harm it or destroy its sheen but will look as good as real sun-streaking in the summer? —C.E. of Chicago.

(A.) "Sun-streaking" that looks natural and summery is hard to get out of a bottle or tube. I am sending you the name of a shampoo that should lighten up all your hair without dulling its sheen.

(Want personal answers to your questions? Write to Jean Adams, Box 2402, Houston, Texas 77001. Be sure to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Another 'Heidi' on Tube

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Television's most publicized sports rhabarb of the season came when NBC-TV cut away from the end of a New York Jets football game to start a special program, "Heidi."

But Sunday ABC-TV, whose notable sports department has many achievements to its credit, made an on-the-air decision that may be more significant in terms of coverage—and was regrettable to fans who have come to admire the network's genuine interest in athletics.

The decision came at the end of ABC-TV's weekly professional basketball game, this one between the Boston Celtics and New York Knickerbockers. Right before action ended, Boston's great player-coach, Bill Russell, took a long pass, rammed it through the basket—and then fell to the floor, hard.

As the game ended, he remained there, his knee severely whacked, and as the camera properly moved in on him, one could see the pitiful sight of Russell in obvious agony. For basketball fans, and for just ordinary viewers, it was a matter of simple human concern.

One of the announcers made the correct statement that although New York had won the game, the real story was there on the floor: Russell.

But the television never had a chance to find out more about Russell's injury, how badly he was hurt or what was to be done with him immediately. For on came the final credits of the broadcast as Russell remained on the floor—and the network arbitrarily ended its coverage.

ABC-TV sports has earned a reputation of having a sportsman's interest in athletics—in the human beings who participate in them, and what happens to them as people.

So one hopes there will never again be the lapse in taste that allows a cutaway to credits as a human being is in agony before a national television audience. And one hopes, in terms of simple coverage, that viewers are not again left hanging in suspense regarding the report-

North plans to get to a slam the moment he hears his partner open with no-trump. He has 12 points and a five-card suit. North has some mild interest in a grand slam even though his partner's two no-trump opening shows only 21 to 22 points, but North is only interested in case his partner holds four hearts. Hence he responds with a Stayman three-club bid rather than a three-diamond Jacoby transfer or normal three hearts.

South's three no-trump rebid is a method used by Stayman, the Jacobys and most experts. A three-diamond reply would show four diamonds.

This rebid simplifies matters for North who jumps right to six no-trump.

The play at six no-trump illustrates a standard safety play. South counts up his sure tricks and sees that he needs four heart tricks for his contract. He doesn't know how the hearts will divide but he can be sure of four tricks provided he does not run into a five-zero break.

He wins the spade in his own hand and plays his king of hearts. West's queen drops and now South has his four heart tricks.

Control of Steelworkers Will Be Decided Next Week

By DOUG BAILEY
PITTSBURGH (AP) — A struggle for control of the United Steelworkers Union, the nation's third-largest, comes to an end next Tuesday.

President I. W. Abel, who won the job four years ago with a promise to give the members more voice, is being challenged by a lawyer from his headquarters staff, Emil E. Narick.

Narick contends that if Abel wins, there is a strong chance he will retire and become head of the AFL-CIO, replacing George Meany, who is 74.

The steelworkers, with 1.2 million members, is the largest in the AFL-CIO since Walter Reuther took his autoworkers' strike over local issues, one of the important differences between the steelworkers and the autoworkers in contract bargaining.

Narick's campaign has stressed his advocacy of greater union democracy and rank-and-file participation—an issue reminiscent of Abel's own campaign, partly along those lines, in 1965.

As the incumbent, Abel is considered the favorite. All 29 of the powerful district directors are backing him. The directors were split when he upset David J. McDonald four years ago. In addition, Abel controls most, if not all, of the staff representatives—field representatives on the union payroll who are an important link between the local unions and headquarters.

Spokesmen for Abel say he will serve out his term if elected. Narick says if he wins, he will re-examine the union's affiliation with the AFL-CIO. If the relationship is not beneficial, he says he will consider "other alignments."

There have been rumors, some of them published, that Reuther is backing Narick. Narick denies it. A spokesman for Reuther disclaimed any knowledge of it.

In an interview, Narick referred to Reuther as an example of the kind of leader the steelworkers need and the autoworkers union as the kind of union that the steelworkers should be.

One of Narick's platform promises would allow locals to

Over Rocky's Budget Trouble Behind the Scenes

By CHARLES DUMAS

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Trouble was simmering behind the scenes today as the legislature addressed itself to Gov. Rockefeller's $224-million deficiency budget bill and its request for $60 million to further the South Mall state office building project here.

The Senate's Republican majority leader, Earl W. Brydges, said he had enough votes in his house to pass the bill—even if Democrats boycotted the measure.

In the GOP-controlled Assembly, however, Speaker Perry B. Duryea Jr. was struggling to line up support. Several economically minded Republicans were balking.

Blast Mall Project

The problem was that State Comptroller Arthur Levitt, a Democrat, had blasted the South Mall project as too costly for the state's purse—especially at a time when Rockefeller is preaching economy in government.

But the South Mall is dear to Rockefeller's heart, and he was pressing hard for passage of the deficiency bill and the mall appropriation.

If Democrats went down the line with Levitt, Duryea—with a thin working majority of 78-72 could find himself at least a few votes short of the 76 needed to pass the money bill.

Brydges said he would like to move the measure in his house today but would not act unless Duryea flashed an all-clear sign from the Assembly.

While Duryea worked backstage to corral the necessary votes, there were these other developments at the Capitol:

The Senate's Democratic minority leader, Joseph Zaritzki, said his party would go all out against a plan by GOP leaders to change the state primary election from June to September this year. The objective was to enhance New York Mayor John V. Lindsay's re-election prospects by shortening the campaign period and minimizing the opportunity for his eventual opponent to make his case against the Republican mayor.

The legislature elected Harold E. Newcomb, an International Business Machines executive from Owego, to the State Board of Regents and re-elected Chancellor Joseph W. McGovern of the Bronx for a full, 15-year term on the board. Newcomb was the choice of Republican majority leaders, and the Democrats did not oppose him. The re-election of McGovern, a Democrat, was treated as a formality.

The deficiency budget bill was submitted by Rockefeller last month as an annual exercise, to cover expenses in the current fiscal year that were not anticipated when the main budget was adopted last year.

The $224-million figure is the "hard cash" that would be needed.

The $60 million for the South Mall is a "first instance" appropriation—an advance from the state to be repaid eventually from bond borrowings used to finance mall construction.

Costs Out of Hand

Levitt complained that costs of building the mall project, an ultra-modern complex of office buildings near the Capitol, have gotten out of hand.

Most of the $60 million would be used to finance a cultural center, housing a state library and a state museum. The building originally was priced at $60 million but now is expected to cost about $100 million.

Many Democratic legislators are indifferent to Levitt's views on the mall but feel obliged to support the Democratic comptroller's arguments.

Governor Increases Pressure For More Federal Assistance

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller increased the pressure for more federal assistance to what he termed financially troubled New York State in two appearances in Western New York Monday.

In a frank talk with the members of the New York State Society of Newspaper Editors the governor called for federal assumption of all welfare costs and "a national contributory health insurance" program, which he characterized as a "first line of defense" against skyrocketing medical costs.

Earlier in the day Rockefeller was in Niagara Falls where he held his eighth in a series of so-called town meetings, in which he defended his plan for a five per cent across-the-board cut in state spending.

He told representatives of area school boards of education he would ask the legislature to set up new formulas for state-mandated programs that would bring financial flexibility to hard pressed school districts. He also urged austerity in school budgets.

Rockefeller told the editors the state "can't go any further on its own," and painted a bleak picture of the state's overall fiscal situation.

In defending his austerity budget, Rockefeller said, there is little leeway left to tax without putting the state in a non-competitive position with other states.

He said college professors had refused to join the State University system because of the state's high taxes and said the same was true for business and industrial executives who have shied away from coming to New York.

He said the federal government takes $22 billion from the state in taxes but only returns $1.4 billion. State aid to New York City alone amounts to $1.7 billion, Rockefeller said.

Rockefeller said he has not decided whether to accept a policy making, trouble-shooting South American post offered to him by President Nixon. He said, however, he felt he could handle the job and remain as governor of New York, which he described as the best job in the nation outside the presidency.

Rockefeller also reiterated his desire to run for a fourth term as the state's chief executive and told the editors, "As long as you fellows can tolerate me I'm going to run again."

Fulbright of Administration

Must Make Nuclear Treaty Case

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. J. W. Fulbright says the Nixon administration will have to make its own case if it expects the Senate to approve the nuclear nonproliferation treaty.

"If the administration wants this treaty, it will have to make its own case for it," Fulbright, the Arkansas Democrat who heads the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said.

"It won't be enough just to say that President Johnson and Secretary of State (Dean) Rusk made the case."

"We will want the new administration to make known its attitude toward the treaty," said Fulbright, who supports the pact.

Fulbright said high administration officials have told him they hope President Nixon will decide this week whether he wants action on the treaty now. However, administration sources indicated prior to the interview with Fulbright that Nixon had decided to recommend this week that the Senate proceed toward early approval of the treaty.

The Foreign Relations committee approved the treaty during the last Congress, but it was not called up for a floor vote.

The delay was caused in large measure by Nixon's reluctance to see it ratified when the memory of the Soviet Union's invasion of Czechoslovakia was fresh. Nixon said during his campaign he was concerned about some of its provisions, although he never spelled out this concern.

The treaty has been signed by 84 nations, including the United States, but does not take effect until ratified by the U.S., Britain, the Soviet Union and any 40 other nations. Great Britain is the only nuclear power that has ratified it so far.

Under treaty terms, nuclear powers would pledge not to give weapons to a non-nuclear power, which in turn would promise not to seek the weapons.

Molnari said that unless "some clues are turned up by Thursday" he would have no alternative but to declare the post officially vacant.

Coutant's family has posted a $1,000 reward for information leading to his whereabouts.
